

IF LIFE IS DULL, IT'S YOUR FAULT, LECTURER CLAIMS

Freedom from Drudgery and Toil Characterizes Present Age, He Says

"It has taken man 25,000 years to free himself from drudgery and toil, and this freedom has been accomplished in our day," said Dudley Crafts Watson, membership lecturer of the Chicago Art Institute, in his lecture on Art in the New American Life Wednesday evening at Peabody hall. "If people today are living uninteresting lives, it is their own fault."

He went on to show that the situation today is such that people are working fewer hours each day, thus leaving more time for recreation. This recreation takes various forms, the speaker stated, and results in interest in home decoration and beautification.

Mr. Watson expressed the opinion that the American home is becoming a show place, and made a plea for at least one big room in each home in which children and adults can follow their inclination and interest, whether it be in craftwork, painting, or some other form of recreation.

DISPLAYS SLIDES

In discussing the artistic place of American in the world, Mr. Watson said that our country has made a reputation for herself of which we may be proud, for in every phase of art she has a list of names of men and women who have contributed worthwhile works to the art of today. Beautifully colored slides were shown in connection with the lecture, showing the works of prominent painters, sculptors, architects, and other craftsmen who lived in this section of the country and who became world famous. Among the examples of almost perfect architecture, Mr. Watson showed pictures of the home of Governor Walter J. Kohler at Kohler and scenes in the village of Kohler.

The contrast between the old fashioned American home, with its ugly, nondescript architectural design, and the new correct homes which are being built at present was brought out by the slides, as was the difference in rooms, their furnishing, walls, ceilings, floors and floor coverings.

Mr. Watson scored the practice of designing material to make it appear to be other than it is, saying that "in art there can be no forgery." He gave as an example of this the painting of steel to resemble wood.

REVIEW DIFFERENT TYPES

Various types of art were discussed by the speaker who mentioned modernistic, landscape, flower, still life, portrait, and action paintings. He stated that winter landscapes are best painted by the American artists. Sculpture was discussed at some length and the contrast was brought out between the old time memorials and the new and more beautiful ones which are being erected today.

In closing Mr. Watson said that the keynote of the new American life is the pursuit of beauty in everyday life, living with beauty, and demanding it in everything. For this reason, he concluded, America is contributing to the art of today, and is doing something of which she may be proud.

The lecture was sponsored by Appleton Woman's club.

46 PATROL LEADERS AT SHEBOYGAN MEET

Forty-six valley council patrol leaders, members of troops from Appleton, Neenah, Menasha and Clintonville, left Thursday morning for Camp Rockford, Sheboygan council scout camp near Kiel, to attend the two-day patrol leaders' conference. They were accompanied by M. G. Clark, valley scout executive. Patrol leaders from Fond du Lac, Oshkosh, Manitowish and Sheboygan councils will join the Appleton contingency at the camp. The youngsters are expected to return home Friday night.

INVEST TENDERFOOT SCOUTS AT MEETING

Two tenderfoot scouts were invested into valley council boy scouts Troop 2, First Methodist church, Wednesday evening in the church parlors. They are Arthur Remley, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Remley, and Tom Sell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Sell. Following the investiture ceremony a Halloween party was given by the committee in charge. Games and stunts furnished entertainment, after which a lunch was served. H. E. Brown is scout master of the troop.

'GHOSTS' WARNED TO BEHAVE HERE HALLOWEEN EVE

A concentration of police forces to prevent property damage Halloween eve is being planned by Police Chief George T. Prim.

The chief said that complaints already are being made about damage done by premature Halloween celebrators and that two motorcycle officers have been assigned to night patrol duty to watch for offenders. On Halloween eve there will be three motorcoops on duty in addition to every officer on the force. Offenders will promptly be arrested, the chief said.

Use of soap to mark store, house or automobile windows is taboo, the chief said. Other acts of vandalism which endanger life or property will be met with severe treatment on the part of the officers, Chief Prim said. Citizens were advised to keep their porch lights burning and to keep all objects which might possibly be carried around.

"We do not want to interfere with innocent fun on Halloween eve," Chief Prim said, "but we will take steps to punish any act of vandalism."

WIND UP COUNTY HIGHWAY WORK FOR SEASON NEXT WEEK

Largest Single Project Was Improvement, Rerouting of Highway 55

Outagamie-co road work will probably close for the season late next week, according to Frank Appleton, highway commissioner.

The largest single project in the county this season, the improvement and rerouting of Highway 55 between Kaukauna and Freedom, is rapidly nearing completion. This improvement, which consisted of building about three and a half miles of new road from Kaukauna north toward Freedom, cost about $85,000. The funds were furnished by the state, although the county supervised the work. The Victory Construction company of Little Saumice did the grading work at a cost of $58,000. Frank Murphy, Appleton contractor, furnished the gravel at a cost of $23,000.

The series of small gravel projects on county trunk highways, started this week under contracts let about a week ago by the county will be completed within a week or 10 days. The materials are being furnished by contractors and the county is doing the road work.

Another improvement which was started this week by the county was the installation of a new drainage system at the underpass on Highway 54 just west of Black Creek. This improvement is necessary because the old drainage system did not operate properly and the pass usually was flooded with water during a heavy storm. An electric pump is being installed to pump the water out of the depression.

Paving of one half mile of Highway 26 within the village of Hortonville was completed last week and the new road was opened to traffic this week.

All the county work is expected to end within 10 days or two weeks, Mr. Appleton said, and the road crews will then concentrate on setting up snow fence.

This plate was used to send fruit to the first rector of the parish during the typhoid fever siege that resulted in his death at the time he was attempting to raise funds with which to build the first church.

A number of old books with original prints, and several pictures of the earliest settlers of the community will also be on display. The anniversary dinner will be

May Advertise For Postoffice Bids Next February

DRAWINGS TO BE READY IN ABOUT 2 WEEKS

Expect Ground Will Be Broken for Building in April or May

BY RUBY A. BLACK

Washington, D. C., Oct. 29.—The Treasury department will probably advertise in February for bids for construction of Appleton's new post office building, the limit of cost of which is $260,000, including the site.

Drawings of the plans for the stone or stone and brick structure are now 50 per cent completed. If the architects proceed at the present rate, they will turn the drawings over to the engineering division about the middle of November for specifications to be prepared for the building. Preparation of detailed specifications to be provided prospective contractors takes considerable time, as, of course, every detail must be carefully checked, the nature of all materials determined.

After bids are advertised, it will take nearly two months for the bids to be received, opened and investigated, and the contract awarded. The successful contractor will be given a month to assemble his materials and prepare for work.

At this rate, ground for the building at Washington and Superior streets should be broken in April or May.

ASK COMPENSATION FOR WORKER'S DEATH

Man Died from Fractured Skull in Jump from Moving Truck

Compensation under the Workmen's Compensation act for the death of Theodore Dasher, formerly of Menasha, was asked by Dasher's relatives at a hearing before Hoyta Wabnitz, examiner for the Wisconsin Industrial commission, at a hearing at the courthouse this morning. Defendants are Thomas P. Haganey, Kaukauna, and Andrew Hollas, Jr.

Dasher died when he leaped from "Hollas' truck near Weyauwega, on Aug. 14, 1928. Dasher, with Hollas, was hauling a truckload of horses for Haganey when the horses became frightened and started breaking through the driver's cab. Dasher attempted to leap to safety but fell, fracturing his skull.

Testimony also was taken in the claim of Ross Cuck, Neenah, against the Kimberly Clark company. Cuck was injured in a fight with Norbert Forester, Appleton, while employed at the mill. He was knocked down and his skull was injured. He is claiming compensation for the injury.

Some testimony also was taken in the case of Alice M. Redford, Oshkosh, against the Equitable Fraternal Reserve association at Neenah.

ARTIST SERIES OPENS TONIGHT

Heinrich Schlusnus, German Baritone, First Musician on Program

The Community Artist Series in Appleton will open tonight with the appearance of Heinrich Schlusnus, leading baritone of the Berlin State opera at Lawrence Memorial chapel. Tickets for the performance are still available at Belling drugstore, and last minute reservations can be made at the ticket office.

Schlusnus' lovely voice, his charming personality, and his sense of the dramatic have won for him an acclaim that draws large crowds to hear him wherever he sings. His voice is robust and intensely dramatic, and his platform manner is without a sign of affectation.

Born in Strassburg on the Rhine, Schlusnus studied music until the war came. He was sent to the front where he remained until a service wound in 1918 ended his active service. Returning to his music, he was soon offered an engagement at the Nuernberg opera, where he remained until 1917 when Count Huelken Baeseler had him called to the Royal Court opera in Berlin.

Name Local Teacher As State Head

uate of the University of Wisconsin, Miss McCarthy taught in the Neillsville and Hudson high schools before coming to Appleton in 1922.

TEACHERS ATTEND

Teachers and principals from Appleton high, Wilson, Roosevelt and McKinley junior high schools, McKinley, Washington and Franklin grade schools are attending the convention, those seven schools having declared a three day holiday for the convention.

Other officers elected include:

Miss Lillian McCormick, Superior; Ray E. Brasure, Hartford; and F. E. Drescher, Fennimore, vice presidents. Also Mrs. Charlotte Kohn, La Crosse, and E. G. Dougan, Madison, executive committee members. The new president will act as head of the executive committee.

Miss Anna V. Day, Milwaukee State Teachers' college dean of women, was made head of the Wisconsin Association of Deans of Women, replacing Dean F. Louise Nardin of the University of Wisconsin. The new vice president is Miss Susan B. Davis, University of Wisconsin adviser to freshmen women; and the new secretary is Miss Helen E. Gross, Washington high school, Milwaukee.

GO ON PROGRAM

Appleton educators on the program at the state meeting include: Dr. Henry M. Wriston, president of Lawrence college; H. H. Helble, principal of Appleton high school; Herb Heilig, head of the Vocational school; A. G. Oosterhaus, principal of Roosevelt junior high school; F. Theodore Cloak of the Lawrence dramatic department; and A. G. Noyes, itinerant coordinator of trade art industry classes in Wisconsin schools.

Adherence to the same vague among other teachers associations in the country was the reason for the change in the name of the state body. The reorganization of the association will be studied for another year before action is taken. Under the proposed reorganization, eight divisions will be created, comprising the present seven divisions with an eighth unit at Milwaukee. Reorganization is urged because of economy, greater solidarity of the profession, greater influence in education legislation and elimination of criticism for frequent dismissal of schools for attendance at professional meetings.

CLEAR SKIES, WARMER WEATHER IS FORECAST

Fair and warmer weather is in the offing, the weatherman says in his predictions for Thursday night and Friday. A cold front will move in from the west, bringing with it a change in the weather.

Similar predictions have been forecast throughout the middle-west for the next 24 hours. His predictions Wednesday failed to materialize as far as the immediate vicinity was concerned.

More snow with a slight rise in the mercury is on the menu for the northern regions during the next 24 hours. Winds are shifting in the northwest and west, a good indication that skies will be clear.

At 6 o'clock Thursday morning the mercury registered 34 degrees above zero, while at noon it registered 47 degrees.

REOPEN CLOTHING STORE NEXT MONTH

The Hughes Clothing Co. store at 108 W. College will be ready for occupancy again by Nov. 10, it was announced Thursday. Fixtures were refinished and repaired, and the interior of the store has been remodelled. A complete new line of stock is to be put into the shop, it was announced.

SCOUT DRUM CORPS IN WEEKLY PRACTICE

The weekly rehearsal of the valley council boy scout drum and bugle corps was held Wednesday evening at Moose hall, with Cloyd Schroeder, corps leader and deputy scout commissioner in charge. The early part of the evening again was spent in drilling and march formation, while the latter part of the practice period was devoted to actual instruction and practice on drums and trumpets.

Jobless Men File Into City Hall Work Bureau

That Appleton has its unemployment problem is apparent from the popularity of the employment bureau opened this week by W. L. Lyons, post commissioner. By Thursday morning 23 jobless persons, including 21 men and two women, had filed their needs with the post commissioner and by Wednesday evening five had been placed. Thursday morning there were no jobs registered, but Mr. Lyons is hoping that through the cooperation of plant superintendents and other businessmen occasional jobs will be registered every day. However, it is apparent that the line of jobless will far outdistance the line of jobs.

Yesterday the station agent at Greenville called for two men to repair and build fences. At the time there was one man in city hall and a second was picked from the list of earlier applicants. Three others were given jobs in the city. The list of applicants on file in Mr. Lyons' office includes a farm hand, carpenter, baker, papermill worker, painter, knitter, machinist, plasterer, laborer, truck driver and many others.

Thursday morning the chairs outside the post commissioner's office were filled with job seekers and small knots of unemployed stood around in the halls waiting like Dickens' Micawber, "for something to turn up."

Three addresses were given at the morning meeting. County Judge Fred V. Heinemann, who is also a member of the board of canvassers, discussed errors made by clerks in reporting the returns of the primary election. He also discussed charges in the election laws. Carl Becher, Appleton city clerk, discussed the annual report which clerks are required to make each year by law. Town and county road projects and the manner in which this law operates was discussed by Frank Appleton, highway commissioner.

After these addresses the clerks spent the morning in a round table discussion of problems of their office.

At noon the clerks were entertained at a banquet at Hotel Northern. After dinner an address was given by John A. Lonsdorf, attorney. Mr. Lonsdorf discussed The Constitution of the United States and Duties of Clerks. After this address the clerks held another open forum discussion of problems and election of officers is to be held. Present officers are Donald Breitrick, Ellington, president, John E. Hantschel, county clerk.

NAME COMMITTEE TO PROMOTE NINE FOOT BARGE CANAL

Twenty-one Cities Are Represented at Waterways Meeting at Oshkosh

A permanent organization for promotion of a nine-foot barge canal from Green Bay to the Mississippi river by way of the lower and upper Fox rivers, was effected Wednesday at a meeting of representatives from 21 valley cities at Oshkosh.

Members of the committee are Sol Kingsbaker, president, chamber of commerce, Oshkosh; R. F. Malla, secretary, association of commerce, Green Bay; R. E. Zatron, secretary, chamber of commerce, Portage; W. B. Dalton, Nekose-Edwards Paper company, Port Edwards; and Alan H. Tripp, president, Association for Relief From High Water, Oshkosh.

City representatives at the meeting were Green Bay, De Pere, Neenah, Menasha, Fond du Lac, Montello, and Portage. Another meeting has been called for Nov. 17 at which time the committee will report on its work and the group will hear Lechlan MacLeay, St. Louis, Mississippi valley engineering expert.

One of the speakers at Wednesday's meeting was R. S. Mac Elvane, an engineer who has been retained to study the canal project. He declared that before the government can be interested in widening and deepening those portions of the Fox and Wisconsin rivers along the route, a vast amount of research, extending probably over eight years will be necessary.

He, he pointed out, no time must be lost, as other ports are equally interested in drawing international commerce. Failure of a huge canal project in New York state has created a certain amount of prejudice against the project which must be overcome, he said.

THREE MEN GUILTY IN EXTORTION CASE

Jury Finds Employees of Rendering Plant Threatened Former Manager

George and David Kappelick, brothers, and William Bernitzki, all of Chilton, were found guilty of attempted extortion by a jury in Calumet circuit court late Wednesday afternoon. Judge Fred Beglinger, Oshkosh, presided at the trial.

The men were arrested in September on complaint of Robert Kuehne, who was charged with threatening Kuehne, for whom the trio threatened work. Kuehne testified the men came to him on Sept. 15 and demanded money totaling $12,000 if they withheld "secret facts" about the burning of the rendering company plant in August. Kuehne immediately had the men arrested.

Trial of the three started Tuesday and testimony was completed Tuesday afternoon. The case was given to the jury Wednesday morning and it deliberated about seven hours. The three men with testimony of the three men and of Kuehne, and introduction of statements the men were supposed to have made and signed after their arrest in September. District Attorney Anton Madler, Chilton won his point that the rendering plant was threatened by Kuehne. The men practically admitted the charge in their statements but maintained in court they did not know what they were signing when they affixed their signatures to the documents.

The statements were obtained by the district attorney and sheriff's officers at the county jail after the arrest.

Judge Beglinger will hear motion by defense attorneys to have the verdict set aside on Nov. 8. If he denies the request the men will be sentenced.

Talks by Judge Heinemann, Frank Appleton and Carl Becher Are Features

Forty town, city and village clerks of Outagamie-co gathered at the courthouse this morning for the annual meeting of the County Clerk's association.

Three addresses were given at the morning meeting. County Judge Fred V. Heinemann, who is also a member of the board of canvassers, discussed errors made by clerks in reporting the returns of the primary election. He also discussed charges in the election laws. ## POLICE INVESTIGATE AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

Police Thursday morning were investigating the accident at the corner of N. Superior-st and W. Wisconsin-ave when a car owned and driven by James Robertson, 913 W. Lorain-st, sideswiped another machine and finally crashed into the northeast corner of the Rademacher Grocery store, at that corner. The accident happened at 7:30 Wednesday evening.

Robertson was driving west on Wisconsin-ave when his car sideswiped a machine driven by Fred Zuehlke, 1709 N. Appleton-ave, who was traveling in the same direction. Robertson's car then careened to one side, leaped the curb and crashed into the building. Zuehlke's car was slightly damaged but Robertson's car was badly damaged. Zuehlke gave chase after the accident but was unable to catch Robertson, he told police.

500 CHEESEMAKERS AT CONVENTION OF STATE ASSOCIATION

Chairman of Department of Agriculture Favors Cooperative Marketing

BY W. F. WINSEY

Clintonville — Approximately 500 cheesemakers, buttermakers and other people attended the afternoon session of the third annual convention of Northeastern Wisconsin cheesemakers and buttermakers Wednesday. President Ed. Malchuck presided at both sessions. A. C. Cather, secretary of the Clintonville Chamber of Commerce, welcomed the visitors and H. F. Zarling, Clintonville, responded to the welcome. Greetings from the Wisconsin Cheesemakers association were tendered by O. R. Schwantes, secretary. Greetings from the Wisconsin Buttermakers association were presented by H. C. Larson, Madison, secretary. The Clintonville high school entertained with concert under the leadership of Miss Alva Smith. Max Stieg led the community singing.

Charles L. Hill, chairman of the department of agriculture and markets, declared himself in favor of cooperative marketing of dairy products.

"There are three ways that the quality of cheese can be improved without the intervention of laws," said Mr. Hill. "The first way is to pay the producer more money for cheese, the second is to pay the producer more money for his cheese and the third is to pay the producer more money for his cheese."

"I came here because I wanted to see you cheesemakers, talk things over and get your view point."

"Who is to decide on what the quality of cheese should be? Who is most interested in the quality of cheese? It is the consumer."

"Someone said that the state should determine what the quality of cheese should be, but the state is made up of all the people. While the state may punish offenders it cannot make the people better by passing laws."

"Groups of cheesemakers are voluntarily suggesting to brand two grades of cheese with 'Wisconsin,' the other brand to be placed on aged cheese and the other on cheese thirty days old."

"With such bands on cheese the busy housewife if she wants snappy cheese should be able to get it. She wants the kind she wants at the store."

"I hope it will be possible before the close of 1930 through the cooperation of the cheesemakers and the department of markets to brand all local cheese, 'Wisconsin.'"

"It would be much better if the brand was adopted by the cheesemakers to increase the demand for their products than for the state to do so."

"There will be a formal hearing of cheesemakers on the branding of Wisconsin cheese at the State Cheesemakers convention soon to be held at Milwaukee."

"I hope you people will consider making 90 per cent perfect cheese and stamping it 'Wisconsin' while you are at work at your vats during the weeks before the state convention, and be prepared to adopt a plan that will draw more money to your industry and into your own pockets."

DEFER ACTION ON DALE-OSHKOSH ROAD

Winnebago-co Has No Funds to Spare for New Route as Proposed

The proposal to open a new road between Dale and Oshkosh, which would provide a shorter route between Appleton and Oshkosh, was indefinitely postponed by the Winnebago-co highway commissions at a joint conference at Dale yesterday. The conference was sponsored by a group of Dale businessmen. A dinner preceded the discussion.

It was decided to lay the matter over until the future when the Winnebago-co group pointed out that it faced the prospect of providing another route to Oshkosh and Fond du Lac to relieve traffic congestion on Highway 41. The Winnebago-co highway men said the cost of the Oshkosh-Fond du Lac route would be so great that there would be no funds available for the proposed Dale-Oshkosh road.

It was estimated that the cost of building the road in Winnebago-co would be in the neighborhood of $125,000. It would require building of several miles of new road and at least two bridges. This new road would connect with County Trunk T in Outagamie-co, but it would be necessary for Outagamie-co to spend $25,000 to improve its road.

JUNIOR CHAMBER LAUNCHES ANOTHER VOTING CAMPAIGN

A "Get Out and Vote" campaign similar to that conducted for the primary election is being launched by the Appleton Junior Chamber of Commerce. The organization again will expend every effort to get a large number of Appleton citizens to vote next Tuesday, Nov. 4, according to Fred Bendt, chairman of the campaign committee.

The Junior chamber has secured the cooperation of local theatres, churches and factories in carrying on the drive. Theatres will run slides carrying the chant "Vote Nov. 4," and local churches will make announcements from their pulpits, and factories will blow their whistles at 3 o'clock the afternoon before election day.

Members of the Junior group also will paint their slogan on the principal street corner of the city. Other methods of getting citizens out to vote also are being worked out.

COMPLETE PLANS FOR "FARM-CITY" FOLK DINNER MEET

Professor A. B. Hall to Address Group at Methodist Church

The "farm-city" folk dinner meeting, designed to bring about better feeling and closer relationship between the farmer and city people will be held at 7 o'clock Friday evening, Nov. 14. It was decided at a meeting of the rural affairs committee of the chamber of commerce Wednesday evening in the chamber offices. The meeting will take place in the First Methodist church parlors.

Professor A. B. Hall of the University of Wisconsin will be the principal speaker. He will talk on "The Outlook of the Dairy Industry." The Rev. L. D. Utts of Episcopal church will offer special entertainment in the form of musical numbers and vocal solos. W. E. Smith, chairman of the rural affairs committee will act as toastmaster.

The dinner is to be served in cafeteria style, and the food is to be prepared by the wives of Outagamie-co farmers. Groups of farm women will meet during the next week or two to prepare menus for the baskets of lunch which are to be brought to the church building Friday afternoon, before the dinner meeting. A special effort is being made by the farm women to eliminate duplication of menus. Some will bring chicken, while others will prepare other kinds of food menus, it was announced.

A special effort also is being made to secure a record attendance for the dinner party. In former years the meetings attracted from 250 to 350 people, and this year it is expected 500 or more farmers and city people will attend the dinner. A special committee has been appointed to encourage attendance, and to work with farm people. The group is composed of Charles Hoffensperger, Emery Meltz, A. B. Kassilke, Albert Huss, George E. Johnson, and Emil Zeidler.

Those present at the meeting Wednesday evening were W. E. Smith, chairman, Walter Viockert, F. G. Dahm, J. R. Whitman, Chris Mullen, Gus Sell, Miss Harriet Thompson, Miss Alice Murray, George Schaefer and R. T. Gage.

Election Result Still Puzzle To Politicians

contributed its share to the dispute, and the Republican tariff bill became a law just in time to carry its special load of controversy to the political stump.

Nearly all of these considerations have become more or less intertwined with various state campaigns, including the spectacular gubernatorial contests in New York and Pennsylvania, now at fever heat. They are still further tangled with local issues in senatorial and congressional campaigns, in a manner which makes even the wisest political diagnosticians hesitate when they speak of what may happen at the polls on Nov. 4.

No responsible party leader denies, however, that on the basis of all these issues jumbled together, the Democrats have made a really serious bid for control of the next house of representatives. Even when they speak privately, the Democratic politicians insist they expect a majority. The Republicans, basing their opinions on a different set of reports from the field, insist privately that while their margin of control will be reduced materially, the majority will remain Republican.

If the most earnest professions on both sides are to be taken at face value, this is one campaign where only a count of the ballots can deliver a reliable verdict.

UP TO WESTERN GROUP

The senate is quite another proposition. Only one-third of its membership comes up for election in 1930, and many of the states electing provide no possibility of a turnover. In the limited field remaining, Republicans and Democrats agree that the Republican majority will be reduced but that only an epochal Democratic landslide could insure Democratic control.

Into all of these mathematical calculations enters eventually the unknown quantity known as "X." It stands for the western independents, that group within the party which has stood so often against the major policies of President Hoover. What can Mr. Hoover expect the Republicans ask themselves, from Republican majorities in senate and house so slender as to give the independents the balance of power?

On this question, directly, the independents themselves are not speaking for publication. It is a part of the day's news, however, that Senator Borah, after remaining silent through most of the campaign, has left Idaho to speak in Nebraska for Senator Norris, who bolted Hoover in 1928.

Washington—(P)—Secretary Mellon last night emerged from his customary political silence, to ask the voters to elect next Tuesday a Republican congress.

"It is not time for divided authority," the treasury chief told a nationwide radio audience. "It is rather a time for strong and united action and, in asking support for the president and the administration, I do so in the belief that in this way we shall attain most quickly that full measure of economic recovery which is inevitable in a nation so self-reliant and so justifiably confident of the future."

The secretary said the administration was doing all possible to hasten recovery from the business depression and alleviate suffering from unemployment, but he cautioned his listeners:

"It cannot work miracles. The most that any administration can do is to keep the boat steady and headed in the right direction until the storm blows over; and that the president

BIG AUTOMOBILE MAKER INVADES ELECTRIC FIELD

Manufacturer to Produce
Household Electrical Equipment

BY J. C. ROYLE
Copyright, 1930, by Coss Press
Washington—(CFA)—The household electrical equipment industry is about to be invaded by a new competitor. It has become known that one of the largest automobile manufacturers is all prepared to add these specialties to its already extensive production schedules. It will make electric irons, curlers, vacuum cleaners, toasters, heaters and a hundred other products as well as motors for various purposes and electrical radio equipment.

It was, in fact, the venture into the radio field by this company that gave it the idea, supported by great success recently in the electric refrigerator field. The company now is making gas refrigerators as well. The most important thing projected, however, is a house cooling plant which, it is claimed, will mean the retirement of electric fans in many homes and offices and public places in summer within the next five years.

The cooling system has proceeded far enough to demonstrate that it is thoroughly feasible. It is not particularly cheap equipment; but it is felt that its cost will come well within the means of the householder who has installed oil heating plants and other new labor saving and comfort producing equipment in his home in recent years.

SEE UNLIMITED SALES
The cooling system is believed to have almost unlimited sales possibilities, for it is the type of equipment which efficiency seekers say should be installed in industrial plants and factories.

The advertising copy making announcement of the new lines is now in process of preparation, it is understood, and quantity production of the equipment will not be long delayed.

The move is along the general lines which all far-sighted business executives now realize must be followed if distribution is to keep pace with production in efficiency. This company has a wide number of outlets to the consumer public through its dealer agents. It obviously intends to make these outlets carry more kinds of products to the buyers. This system will permit the articles being given window display space and will aid dealers in operating their sales forces to the utmost without loss of time or waste motion. Thus it will aid the automobile dealer in reducing overhead and in avoiding full effects of seasonal slumps.

The manufacturer expects to benefit by running machinery and working forces at a pace closer to capacity and full efficiency. The move, however, undoubtedly means a tightening of competition between the major electrical equipment makers.

The news of this new venture, while it comes as a surprise, is regarded by businessmen who have learned of it as typical of the tendencies of the day. Nearly all manufacturers are seeking profitable sidelines which will enable them to operate at a maximum of efficiency and a minimum of cost and which will utilize sales outlets and sales forces to the utmost. This has been exemplified in the oil industry, in the production of prepared foods, in distribution of drugs and toilet articles and in a score of lines, some of which intimately affect the chain store and mail order house businesses.

Only a few voters have cast their votes by mail, according to John E. Hantschel, county clerk. Before the primary election in September there were hundreds of votes cast by mail. Votes can be cast by mail, Mr. Hantschel said, up to three days before election. Ballots can be obtained either from the county clerk or from town, city and village clerks. Voters who will be absent on election day can cast their ballots up to the day before election by calling at Mr. Hantschel's office.

URGES CLOSE CONTACT IN VOCATIONAL WORK

Milwaukee—(CFA)—Close cooperation between schools, worker groups and employers was advocated for efficiency in vocational education by Perry W. Reeves, of the Federal Board for Vocational Education, in a speech before the Wisconsin Vocational association here today.

Mr. Reeves told the delegates that employers, labor groups and vocational schools cannot singly accomplish the best results in vocational training. A part-time vocational course in which persons already employed are given combined instruction and training while working was advocated by the speaker.

"When a vocational training program is to be set up," Mr. Reeves said, "an advisory committee in which the school, the employer, and the worker are represented should be appointed. In cooperation with the local director of vocational education, the committee should draw up the apprenticeship regulations, plan the course of study and work, provide and grant certificates of graduation and supervise the entire program."

"Under this plan the employer is relieved of any suspicion of exploitation, the worker is able to serve as a check and balance on the number entering training in various trades as well as on the selection and qualifications of the apprentice; and the school is able to perform for the young people entering the trades the work it is fitted to do and should do as the educational agency of society."

Pot Up Bulbs For Winter Bloom In Fall Of Year

This is the season to pot up bulbs for winter bloom in a sunny or half-sunny window during the winter months. Some of the bulbs are the easiest of subjects and certain to give flowers. Most certain to give a gorgeous display is the amaryllis. The dormant bulbs are now in stock. Potted up and placed in a window, the plant will start a leaf growth which will shortly be followed by the flower stem. Some times the flower stem appears ahead of the leaves.

The tall stem will bear from two to five huge trumpets in crimson, scarlet, rose or pink. The new hybrids are of enormous size and brilliant coloring and have been featured of the winter flower shows during several seasons past. They are now grown by the acre outdoors in Florida during the winter. They require only ordinary good garden soil, good drainage in the pot, and should not be given too much heat; placing them in a cool window until they are well started into growth.

The paper white and Chinese jilly narcissus are favorite subjects now being grown in bowls of pebbles and water, or in prepared fiber more often than in soil. However, they grow best in soil under the conditions of the average living room. Bulbs should be potted now, kept moist and set away in a dark place until they start making leaf growth when they should be brought out to the light.

Lily of the valley pips, prepared for indoor bloom, are on sale at all dealers now and are one of the easiest of the house plants to grow. The pips should be potted up and set outside until they have been well frozen. They can then be brought into the house, thawed out, and the lily, thinking it is spring, will proceed to send up its bloom spray. It is a good plan to plant a number of roots to be brought in from time to time to furnish a succession of bloom.

Hyacinths are perhaps the commonest bulb for indoor culture. Pot them up with the neck of the bulb just even with the soil, set away in a cool, dark place, keeping just barely moist until the leaf shoot is an inch out of the bulb. Then place them in a window.

BEAVER DAM TO BE HOST TO FARMERS

More than 1,000 farmers are expected to gather in Beaver Dam Nov. 5, 6, and 7 for the annual Farmer's Get-Together conference sponsored by the Wisconsin council of Agriculture. According to Gus Sell, county agent, a group of Outagamie-co farmers will attend the sessions at which farmer's problems of marketing and stabilization of prices through cooperative selling, will be discussed by experts and at open forum meetings. Twenty-two cooperative marketing agencies will send delegates to the meeting to make reports on activities.

THE TRIP TO EUROPE

The widespread interest that has been aroused in the tour of Europe which A. G. Meating, county superintendent of schools, has arranged for school teachers and their friends, is indicative of the tremendous attraction there is to travel, especially if travel can be arranged at small cost. Mr. Meating, spurred by the success of his trip to Washington last summer, has created a new adventure that is attracting attention not only in this immediate locality and in this state, but all over the country. Long before the contracts had been signed or details of the trip arranged, he had received scores of inquiries for information and many of his correspondents definitely stated their intentions of becoming members of the travel party.

Mr. Meating's enterprise deserves the cordial support of every person in Outagamie county. His long experience with educational work has taught him the desirability of broadening the mental horizons of teachers so that they might have a more intimate knowledge and understanding of the things and places they discuss with their pupils. He has long realized that Shakespeare, the palace of Versailles, Paris, France and England are almost as foreign to teachers without travel experience as they are to the pupils they teach. The enthusiasm that can come only from acquaintance with these places can hardly be expected in the work of teachers to whom the opportunity to travel has been denied.

The opportunity that Mr. Meating now is offering teachers to give them first hand information of how other nations and other peoples live cannot help but make these teachers more enthusiastic in their work and more interested in imparting their knowledge to their pupils. This opportunity for travel should be eagerly grasped. It might never again be offered.

Mr. Meating, already possessing a man's sized job directing the destinies of Outagamie county's rural schools, has assumed a task of Herculean proportions in arranging this tour of Europe. A vast amount of detail is involved in the work. The success of the adventure will depend to a large extent upon the cooperation he receives. And he is entitled to this cooperation. His enterprise reflects as much credit upon Outagamie county as it does upon himself and the people of this country are the direct beneficiaries of his effort.

RENTERS AND LANDLORDS

A real estate operator offers some advice to renters. He says: "Pay your rent promptly and in advance. Use your rented suite carefully and do not allow it to be used for any illegal purpose. Cooperate with other tenants or neighbors in maintaining peace, cleanliness and harmony. Do not create any unnecessary noise, especially in late hours."

A renter is aroused by this list of suggestions to make a few remarks to landlords, such as: "Be as prompt to re-finish floors and re-decorate rooms for long-term tenants as for the prospective renter of an empty suite. Give the tenant who stays year after year an occasional rebate or bonus just as you occasionally give a free month as a concession to attract new renters."

Fortunately there are many considerate and square landlords, as there are also considerate and square renters. Unfortunately the latter do not always find themselves in buildings belonging to the former, and the former do not always find themselves with the latter for tenants. It would be fine if somebody could work out a plan whereby pleasant contact could be assured between fair-minded landlords and tenants, and the other troubles could be left to fight out their troubles alone.

THE LITTLE TEN

The Western Conference, heretofore known as The Big Ten, but presently unworthy of that title, has vetoed the request of Notre Dame and Northwestern to transfer, their football game from Dwyer stadium at Evanston to Soldier Field at Chicago where over 60,000 more spectators could be seated, with the purpose of turning over the proceeds, estimated roughly at about $200,000, to assist the unemployed the coming winter. The ten professors, one from each of the universities in the conference, constituting the faculty board whose approval was necessary to the transfer, "feared it would set a dangerous precedent which would lead to a number of post-season games and the resultant gate receipts going to charity." This committee has blundered, failed to act according to the merits of the situation. There is no likelihood of setting a "dangerous precedent" but rather a cold and selfish one. Universities are not a thing apart from the people indifferent to public conditions that entail misery and suffering. The public will be satisfied to have these professors return to their various duties and decide for us just when the paleolithic period began, whether or not the blue titmouse is distantly related to the goldfinch, and determine the mooted question concerning the descent of the modern Egyptian from the ancient Copts and to what extent Arabian tribes may be traced from Aaron and Moses, for their viewpoint is ancient, moss-covered and unhealthy and they belong in the dim and distant past.

The matter must never be let rest with this decision if there is any way out. The Board of Regents of each university should, if authorized, reverse this miscarriage of understanding. The exuberant spirits of the young men of both teams, men who welcomed the opportunity of playing for such a cause, must not be chilled by the decision of those who have coldly failed to understand or appreciate the true relations between our great universities and the people. And what a game it would be!

Think of $200,000 worth of good soup, beef stew, hot and steaming coffee to help men who need a lift, worthy men, but, for the time being, in unfortunate circumstances. The opportunity to do good, to be helpful in a large and practical manner, does not come every day. When it comes, like every other good opportunity, it should be embraced.

CITY OF LILACS

As Portland and Pasadena are famous for their roses, Lorain, Ohio, would be famous for its lilacs. Thirty-five civic groups are cooperating in a movement to make their town known throughout the nation as "the city of lilacs." They are contributing money to purchase quantities of the shrubs for planting in the city's parks. Private citizens will plant them in their yards. The lilac will become the city emblem.

It is a charming idea. Lilacs are lovely in themselves, and a city could hardly have too many of them. Their beauty ought to encourage a community to keep itself spruced up generally, with clean streets and pleasant gardens. Lorain probably has started something which other cities will take up, with other flowers or shrubs or trees in place of lilacs.

MINIATURE RADIO

Miniature golf is followed by miniature radio. Midget sets for the mantel are now on the market, so small that they occupy little more room than an ordinary clock. And as a matter of fact, they may take the place of the obsolescent timepiece. Do not a good many people already depend on radio announcements for the time of day?

In the course of the minifying process, it cannot be long now until we have radio receivers that we can carry around in our vest pockets. One pocket will do for the watch and the other will hold the radio. The chain will be the aerial. It will be confusing, though, till we get used to it. We will be winding the radio when we go to bed and turning the watch hands to get Los Angeles.

Today's Anniversary

JOHN ADAMS' BIRTH
 On Oct. 30, 1735, John Adams, second president of the United States, was born at Quincy, Mass. He graduated from Harvard at 20, studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1768. Soon after he married Abigail Smith, whose influence was an important factor in his career. Adams went into politics. He first attracted attention by taking a bold stand against the Stamp tax. He was one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence and supported the Revolution, in which, as chairman of the board of war, he took an active part. While a member of the Continental Congress he suggested that George Washington be placed in command of the Continental forces. After performing notable diplomatic services in Holland, England and France, Adams was elected to succeed Washington as president. He died on July 4, 1826, on the 50th anniversary of the birth of the nation he devoted his energies to establish. John Quincy Adams, his son, was sixth president of the United States.

THE STEENTEN RULES OF HEALTH.

Every little while some one requests me to formulate and publish the steenteen rules of health for the guidance of those who wish to enjoy good health.

I have been working on these rules now, off and on, for twelve years, and each year I am drifting farther and farther from the end. It seems that no matter how carefully I plan my rules, just when I think I have covered the essentials and can write "Lastly," up pops some very important point which I have completely overlooked. At present I believe I will publish my rules of health in 1930 or thereabouts. And when I do it will read something like G. K. Chesterton's aphorism—"of all human things the search for health is the most unhealthful."

I have accumulated a thick pile of data, including I don't know how many sets of health rules formulated by doctors, health officers and laymen. In all these rules I can see little that is worth mentioning; and in many of them I find suggestions which would be better unmentioned, I believe.

Instead of seeking some such health "decadence" which "one" can paste in one's hat and so go thru life with one's fingers crossed, it would be more to the point if we devoted our influence and efforts to the revision of the common school curriculum, to include proper courses in anatomy, physiology and hygiene in place of the balderdash and worse which wastes the time of teacher and pupil under the general subject of "good health."

If every boy and girl were exposed to a proper study of anatomy, physiology and hygiene, as soon now is to arithmetic, grammar and geography, then, I think, every one could live a healthful life without bothering about any arbitrary rules, just as ordinary citizens live for years and years without indictment or even accusation, altho they do not know all the laws.

It is a curious thing that a large share of these sets of health rules are published by opportunists or politicians who, for a fitful period, hold office as health commissioner somewhere. Long after the authors have been forgotten and removed from office their rules live at least in print in musty files. In no instance, so far as my collection shows, has any real practicing physician ventured to compile or tabulate a health-insuring decalogue.

I shall probably never perpetrate any set of health rules. Our readers will forgive me, I am sure, for they know I am not so diffident in expressing my beliefs or opinions about matters pertaining to health, when I feel it right to do so.

Cranky or faddists who believe the one and only way to enjoy health is by doing such and such exercise, eating only such and such foods, or breathing thus and so, are never really happy, and always a bore to those who have to live with or listen to them. Heaven forbid that we should become a nation of health cranks.

Take tobacco. A fool makes a hog of himself, smoking to excess, and eventually pays by serious impairment of health. There is a doubt whatever about that. A health crank maintains you can't use tobacco at all, you must be a total abstainer. If you would enjoy good health, and we all know there is only half-truth in that, for while non-smokers may enjoy good health, certainly many moderate smokers do also.

All things in moderation, is a pretty good rule of health.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

My mother suffers... don't want her to know, but we suspect it is osteitis. I thought you might tell me of a good place where I can have an X-ray picture of her hand, at a reasonable price... (Miss L. M. R.) Answer—That would be foolish. No matter what the cost of an X-ray picture, what would you do with the picture? It must be interpreted by the doctor who is expert in radiography. His interpretation is insignificant to a layman. It is merely an aid to the attending physician—it is seldom more than confirmation of the attending physician's opinion at best. So I think your mother's welfare and economy would both be best served by leaving the X-ray investigation, or any laboratory tests, to the judgment of the attending physician.

Specks Before the Eyes.
 Please discuss what causes black specks to float before the eyes. I am 20 years old, have normal blood pressure for my age (60 many, no matter to other readers) and good health according to my health examination. My eyes were O. K. when they were examined... (Miss J. T.)

Answer—Usually the specks or spots or scintillations (as we learned doctors call 'em, in our well known manner when we don't know much about the subject) are of no significance. Almost any of us, especially when a little too well fed and under-exercised, can conjure up a few such floating spots if he tries. It is like hearing odd hums, whistles, ringing, and the like if you settle down to it and listen hard when the surroundings are quiet. I hope this may clear up your outlook on life, daughter. If it doesn't, come again.

Comphorated Monks.
 Does rubbing spirits of camphor or camphorated oil on any part of the body reduce it? What effect does the camphor have? (Mrs. A. A.) Answer—No part of the body can be reduced by rubbing anything on nor will any local application, application, treatment, massage, garment or gadget reduce any part of the body. Camphor so applied has no local effect, unless it be slight irritation of the skin. But camphor applied to chest, neck or skin about the head is absorbed by inhalation, especially if it is liberally applied and clothing or dressings saturated with it remain long in contact with the warm skin. I have seen a young infant gravely poisoned by camphorated oil applied to the chest for several days in succession, which meant that the infant inhaled some of the volatilized camphor with every breath.

The Tynmites

By Hal Cochran

ALL of a sudden Clowney cried, "Ouch! Ouch! I wish I hadn't tried that doughnut when it was so hot, it burned, and that's not sport. You know what would go good with these? I think a glass of milk would please. There is a creamery right near by. Let's go and get a quart."

So, while more doughnuts were made brown, they bought the milk to wash them down. "Don't eat too many," said the Travel Man. "They'll make you ill." "Well, two's enough for me," said one. "And round about I think I'll run. I know I need some exercise, since I have had my fill."

Then Clowney said, "I think that would do every one of us some good. Let's hike out in the country where there's lots of room to tear. We'll race around and jump and shout, like captive wild-cats, just let out. There's nothing makes you feel so good as breathing good, fresh air."

Along a country road they ran. Right soon the friendly Travel Man cried, "Wait for me. I'm much too old to run as fast as you. When I was young I, too, could tear, but now I simply do not dare. I miss a heap of fun because of things I cannot do."

At last they slowed their pace a bit. Extra Tynmite was feeling fit. Their started playing leap frog and it was a "hot to eat." "Come along, join in 'Travel Man' one Tynmite, 'Just try You can't eat Travel Man's pie. No Tynmites sport for me."

Just as the sun felt very hot, they came upon an eating spot that stood out on the open land. Great palms

A BYSTANDER IN WASHINGTON

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington — Members of the house flock to the floor when it is noised around that serious, scholarly, dignified James Beck of Pennsylvania is to make a speech. They like to hear him, not only because he is a pleasing speaker, but for his speeches as well. A profound student, recognized as an outstanding authority in the legal profession, Beck makes addresses in and out of congress that are meaty—masterpieces of logic, argument and eloquence.

Last winter he addressed the house on prohibition—"The Revolt Against Prohibition" was the way he approached the subject—and he was heard by wet and dry with interest.

A former assistant attorney general of the United States, one time solicitor general, holder of eight honorary degrees from universities and colleges, Beck enjoys the confidence of his colleagues for the sheer power of his intellect.

SELECTED SPEECHES
 Long has been a familiar figure wherever lawyers gather and law is discussed. Bar associations, courts from the lowest to the highest, and gatherings of more or less social import have heard him, not once but many times.

During the past several months, at such times as he could spare from his duties as representative of the first Pennsylvania district, in his library here and at Philadelphia, Beck has gone through his numerous addresses. From them he has selected 17.

Those he edited carefully and offered for prohibition. "Author of many previous volumes, he had little difficulty in finding a publisher for what he chose to call, "May It Please the Court."

"May It Please the Court" will have more of an appeal for lawyers than the general reader. The whole volume is confined to legal subjects. Half of the 17 addresses either are arguments before the supreme court or are concerned with legal aspects of important matters.

SHAKESPEARE STUDENT
 But Congressman Beck has not wholly forgotten the man who knows little of law. There are several of those addresses—one in particular—which the laymen can read with genuine pleasure.

"How Lawyers Worked and Played in Tudor England" is probably the more interesting. Here Beck, who by the way, is a member of the English bar and an honorary bencher of Gray's Inn, describes in

Seen And Heard In New York

BY RICHARD MASSOCK
 New York.—It wouldn't be New York without:
 Chinatown buses in Times square. Laid-off actors clattering the sidewalk in front of the Palace.
 Harlem's wishing tree, where sepi performers wait for word of stage jobs.
 A Roosevelt
 The sidewalk crowds in the garment center at lunchtime.
 The 5 o'clock crush on the Times square subway platform.
 Trinity churchyard.
 The Actor's chapel.
 Kosher market signs.
 Trucks collecting empty bottles from the big hotels.
 A pair of workmen in almost any street, one with a red flag, the other with a pick, tearing up the pavement.

Alfred E. Smith.
 The hansom cabs along Central park plaza.
 Rackets.
EASY COME, EASY GO
 Fortunes that pour into the pockets of racketeers are restless wealth. They are spent almost as fast as they come in. Bank accounts of with those of legitimate business men. The gangster carries his roll in centuries and grand ($100 and $1,000 bills).

Transfers of money in the shady professions are usually made in cash, for obvious reasons. Transactions among the underworld leaders are seldom matters of record. If any record is kept it usually is in the form of cryptic memos.
 Heirs of racketeers are losers as a consequence. And gangdom makes a lot of heirs.

The fabulous fortunes of the easy money gentry become myths upon their sudden death. At the time of Arnold Rothstein's slaying his estate was estimated at $10,000,000. Later the lawyers reported that while it was nominally valued at $4,250,000, it had dwindled to not more than $2,500,000. Much of it was in uncollectible gambling debts.
 Frank Tale, another assassin's victim, left a gross estate of less than $5,000.

Tale's casket was reported in the funeral accounts to have cost $15,000. Maybe it did. But police reporters of experience say that often the impressive coffin of a slain gangster is really a cheap box, made of a sort of tin treated to give it the look of expensive bronze.
 The Tale funeral expenses were $600, the widow reported.

PASTIMES
 Some people, in going about town, observe for their edification the habits of those whom they call "the other half."

Our own observer reports that the night doorman at the Ritz is a cross-word puzzle fan and works them out between carriage calls. He also reports that he dropped into the Ritz to buy a magazine and while there inquired, rather apologetically, of the girl at the newsstand: "I don't suppose you have a copy of 'Variety' (theatrical weekly)?"

"I have," replied the girl. "I'm reading it now."

COMMISSION WARNS AGAINST CUTTING OF STATE OWNED TREES

Opposed to Wholesale Cutting of Christmas Trees on Property

Strict enforcement of the rigid order of the Wisconsin Conservation commission forbidding cutting Christmas trees and winter greens on state owned lands, will be followed again this year, according to word received here by the Isaac Walton league.

All field men of the commission, including conservation wardens and forest rangers located in sections of the state where there are state owned lands, have been furnished with accurate maps of the area showing the lands owned by the state. Anyone apprehended cutting trees or greens on these lands will be prosecuted, it was stated.

A practice by many persons and some companies of ruthlessly cutting small trees and tearing up green growth has practically denuded certain areas, the commission warning stated. The commission has no authority on private lands but is determined to stop the practice on state lands.

The new trespass law, passed by the state legislature, makes trespass on private grounds punishable by fine, which should lessen the pilfering of small trees, it was stated.

HEALTH BOARD URGES MILK SALES CONTROL

Madison—(U.P.)—Regulation of milk sales by each community in Wisconsin was urged by the state board of health today in an effort to curb typhoid fever and septic sore throat.

"Devotees of raw milk, of whom there are known to be large numbers in Wisconsin, are continually faced by two enemies, typhoid fever and septic sore throat," the board said.

In the larger cities of the state, milk ordinances cut the danger of contracting the diseases but in most sections of the state unpasteurized milk frequently has started serious epidemics, the board said. The board said the question of safeguarding milk should fall upon the community rather than the industry.

Most of the raw milk drinkers use it through necessity rather than choice because of the lack of pasteurizing facilities in rural areas, the board said.

Victim Of Robber Gives Aid To Thug's Family

Chicago—(U.P.)—It was nearing midnight as A. C. Mayerle approached his home, walking alone. The street was dimly lighted. It was cold.

He complied quickly when a man stepped in his path pointed a gun at him and ordered him to put up his hands.

The robber's hand trembled as he reached into Mayerle's coat pocket and withdrew a wallet. Mayerle spoke to him.

"There's $35 in the wallet," he said. "It's my week's pay. If you take it, all it's going to be pretty hard on the wife and kids. Could you let me have part of it back?"

The bandit's hand trembled more violently.

"This—is this all new to me," he stammered. "I've got a wife, too. She's sick. There's four kids and I can't find a job. We've got no coal and no groceries. I've simply got to have part of this money. I'll take $10 and give you back the rest."

"Maybe" Mayerle told the bandit as he returned the $25 to his pocket. "If you'll put that gun away we can talk a little. I've still got a job and maybe I can help you out."

The man, still trembling and thoroughly ashamed, gave his name and address and agreed to meet Mayerle the next day.

They met as agreed. Having investigated and learned the truth of the amateur holdup man's story, Mayerle then told the truth himself—that he is a wealthy manufacturing jeweler.

Mayerle had the man's sick wife taken to a hospital, bought food and coal for the family and raised a fund among his friends to aid them further. Then he sought a permanent job for the man, whose name he refused to tell.

"Perhaps it's a bad example," the jeweler said. "Perhaps some folks would argue about the moral of it. But there's one thing they can't argue about—it does show what things are coming to."

150 Pictures Hung for Showing There This Week and Next

An art exhibit of unusual merit will be viewed at Lincoln school the remainder of this week and all of next. The hanging of the 150 pictures was completed Tuesday evening, and the exhibit is now open to the public.

The group of pictures is a varied array of old masterpieces, moderns and some lovely impressionistic pieces. The walls of two rooms, the music and art rooms are lined with large copies of old masterpieces like "Innocence" by Reynolds, the "Avenue of Trees" by Holbema "Laughing Cavalier" by Frazer, Halz impressionistic paintings such as "Spring Blossoms" by Innes, "The Grand Canyon" by Moran, and some lovely interpretations of Venice canals, and ultra modern pieces by Gouzon, Van Gogh and Henck. The Henck group of children's pictures, including "Jack and the Beanstalk," "Little Red Riding Hood," and "The Girl in the Swing", done in a riot of bright colors, are especially appealing.

School children will visit the exhibit from 8:30 to 12 and from 1:30 to 3:30 each day except Saturday and adults will be shown through the rooms, between 3:30 and 6:30 in the afternoon and from 7 to 9 o'clock in the evening.

D.A.R. Head Hits Frank In Address

Fond du Lac.—Mrs. Joseph Brandon, D.A.R. head, today, succeeding Mrs. J. H. Trotman, Milwaukee. Mrs. William M. Cudworth, Milwaukee was elected vice-regent.

Other officers are: Treasurer, Mrs. H. W. Ridgeway, Rosendale; recording secretary, Mrs. John E. Gay, Portage; corresponding secretary, Miss Edith Mathews, Green Bay; registrar, Mrs. George Matney, Oshkosh; librarian, Mrs. George Ashman, Appleton; historian, Mrs. R. E. Mitchell, Eau Claire.

The annual conference comes to an end this afternoon, when resolutions are to be adopted. Delegates did not indicate what action, if any, would be taken on the report of Mrs. Trotman, in which she denounced the state university as a breeding place of Communists.

RS. James Trotman, Milwaukee, state regent of Daughters of the American Revolution, criticized President Glenn Frank and the University of Wisconsin in an address given before the thirty-fourth annual state convention of the organization Wednesday at Fond du Lac.

"The spectacle of a university professor trying to have a Communist student released from jail after taking part in a riot and injuring an officer of the law, and the reply given, according to the newspapers, by the president of the university, to the question whether there are Communists in the university, 'Well, what of it. We are apt to have both Communists and Presbyterians here,' is enlightening," said Mrs. Trotman. She told the audience, however, who were "that the most dangerous element in American life today is the crew of 100 percent American patriots of whom the D. A. R. and the American Legion are a vociferous and pestilential part, who are making the United States the most militaristic nation in the world and leading us into another war," had been called from the University of Indiana.

"The University of Wisconsin," she would seem to be Indiana's gain and Wisconsin's loss," she said.

Mrs. Trotman went on to say that Daughters of the American Revolution believe in national defense, defense of their traditions, of family, life, the home and love of their country enough to wish to save it from all attacks from within and without.

"MUST TRAIN YOUTH"

Mrs. Lowell Fletcher Hobart, president general of the national society, in her banquet address Wednesday evening, appealed to the daughters of Wisconsin to enroll the youth of the state for God and home and country. She mentioned the Communist camp in the state, and the many Communist schools which are dotted over the nation, and stated that it is such innovations which stimulate the D. A. R. to greater effort in their work of training youth as to the correct reverence due the American flag.

The sessions opened Wednesday morning and included an invocation, singing of the flag, and the evening "Star Spangled Banner," an address of welcome by Mrs. O. L. Jones, regent of Fond du Lac, response by Mrs. R. P. Perry, and greetings from George Watson, mayor of Fond du Lac. All officers extended greetings, reports were given, and Mrs. Charles Herrick, national chairman of patriotic education, gave a talk on her work. A memorial service was held on Wednesday.

The state regent and chapter regents met Tuesday afternoon at the Hotel Redway, and in the evening Mrs. Sutherland, Fond du Lac, was hostess at a tea and musicale. Several regents from other states were present.

Mrs. Earl Baker, Mrs. George Nixon, Mrs. George Ashman, Mrs. John Ross Frempton, and Mrs. O. P. Fairfield were present from Appleton at the Wednesday sessions.

Rever Collar

BY ANNEBELLE WORTHINGTON

A dashing silhouette with bewitching collar and cuffs sleeves. It's typically Vionnet. It's delightfully wearable. And into the bargain, it's easily copied.

Its diagonal lines are decidedly slimming. Just enough flare to be chic is given the moderately full circular skirt by insets at each side of the front.

The original model in black canton crepe displayed smart contrast in turquoise blue.

Hunter's green crepe woolen with white silk pique is sportive.

Monotone, spongy woolen in Bordeaux red with black trim, dark brown wool jersey with beige and black velvet with lace are other interesting suggestions.

Style No. 2820 may be had in sizes 16, 18 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust.

Size 36 requires 4 yards of 39-inch material with 3/4 yard, 35-inch contrasting.

Pattern priced at 35 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred). Be sure to fill in size of pattern. Address Pattern Department, Our New Fall and Winter Fashion Magazine is 15 cents a copy, but may be obtained for 10 cents if ordered same time as pattern. ## The Story of Sue by MARGERY HALE.

© 1929 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

JACK'S brows were knitted thoughtfully. "That ring is worth more than a gilded ball on a Christmas tree. It's yours and you ought to have it. But . . . he stopped, with a comic expression on his face. "It's a darned funny situation."

Sue nodded. It was. To secure an engagement ring from your former fiancée, to restore it to your present one, when it was a gift to her from still another party. She wondered what Jean Brady, who had given the emerald to Barbara, would say. He would probably smile rather sadly, she decided, and shrug his shoulders in that man of the world fashion that he had. He could go buy another emerald very easily.

Jack was gone from the office most of the day. Late in the afternoon it started to rain, and the rain gradually turned to snow. People were hurrying through the streets, street lamps were shedding yellow lantern light up and down the way, and the whole city was going home. Sue watched from the window, for the office was quiet. She could hear Mr. Curtis' voice as he talked to a client in his office. She wondered about him a little. He seemed such an efficient piece of machinery, but his outside personality never intruded itself. He might have been an automaton that did its tasks at the appointed time, only he had a keen, shrewd brain. And he was always courteous.

"May I speak to you for a moment, Miss Merryman?"

Sue turned quickly and gazed at Barbara. The purple eyes were flashing with small flames, like the fireworks children use on Fourth of July, and Sue felt her heart heavy with a purple, too, and its great silver-gray collar and cuffs matched her hat and slippers.

"So you thought you would get your ring back, did you? And make me out a greedy, selfish, grasping . . ."

"I'm sorry. I didn't think anything of the sort," Sue interrupted quietly and impersonally. "The ring was pawned and the pawnbroker's assistant pretended he was in charge of the shop and did not make a record of the transaction. The proprietor is checking up on it now, that's all. And whether I'll redeem the ring later . . . that's a different matter."

"But the man came to me and showed me the ring and made a price on it! How did I know he wasn't the owner of it? What did I care whether you gave it up or not? Keeping a ring like that when your sister got the man isn't done in the best circles, anyway . . . or maybe you didn't know. I forgot! But we paid for it. . . . Jeannie gave it to me. . . . And now he has to take it away!" She started to cry and her voice trembled, the sickness which veiled the flint growing tangled and strangled.

"But there are other rings," Sue answered. "I don't want it, anyway."

"But Jean won't let me keep it now, even when it is straightened! I wish I'd never seen it. . . . I wish I'd never seen it!" Suddenly she pulled off a gray suede glove and the blue-green radiance of sunlight on forest leaves when spring leaves a blue mist in the air; of still water on cloudy days, when the sea has only its own sheen for glamor; of a flame of wonderment . . . all this burst into the room.

"You don't want the ring but I do. You don't want it. Won't you tell Jean, so he'll let me have it?"

NEXT: Sue promises.

Mothers, Mix This At Home for a Bad Cough

You'll be pleasantly surprised when you make up this simple home mixture and try it for a distressing cough or chest cold. It takes but a moment to mix and costs little, but it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

Get 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex from any drugist. Pour this into a pint bottle, then fill it with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. The full pint thus made costs no more than a small bottle of ready-made medicine, yet it is much more effective. It is pure, keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

This simple remedy has a remarkable three-fold action. It goes right to the seat of trouble, loosens the germyladen phlegm, and soothes away the inflammation. Part of the medicine is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly upon the bronchial tubes and thus helps inwardly to throw off the whole trouble with surprising ease.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

WE WOMEN

by Betty Brainerd

SPREAD OF DIVORCE

"Dear Betty Brainerd:

I am greatly interested to know what you think is the chief reason for the widespread divorces in this country. Is it the fault of the times? Or have men and women changed for the worse during the last half century? You have had a lot of experience and I am a male who has never tried marriage."

In my opinion there is only one reason for divorce, no matter on what grounds it be granted. That is because the party of the first or second part has ceased to care for the other.

No woman divorces a man because he beats her, or is a drunkard or a tightwad. Nor does a man put away his wife because of her wanton extravagance, her general coarseness or her indifference to the welfare of her home and children. Neither does unfaithfulness constitute a real reason. Witness the vast number of marital slips which are condoned.

All around us we see evidence of the loyalty and devotion wives display towards husbands for whom hanging would be too good.

We find men bound in hopeless adoration of spouses who are not worth their salt.

Lack of liking is the fundamental cause of deciding to sever the matrimonial bonds for better or worse. There is a reason back of this, however, and that is perhaps the proper answer to your question. Married people come to substitute dislike for liking because of an over-dose of criticism, frequently administered.

There is nothing like the marriage ceremony for awakening the critical faculty. It is uncanny how those few words can open the eyes to faults and imperfections, which were imperceptible a short time earlier. Astonishing, too, how they stir the missionary spirit and stimulate a passion for frankness and truth-telling!

The wife will hint that John's neckties aren't all they might be and that his business judgment can't be so good, otherwise he'd be better off financially.

And John will suggest that it might be a good thing for Anna to leave off potatoes, and it's too bad she doesn't find out where Mrs. Blank buys her clothes—she's so well dressed and seems born to be a manager.

Soon, unless they check themselves, Anna and John will be at each other's throats.

None of us like to be told the truth unless it happens to be pleasant—and certainly we can get

Have You Heard —

The newest necklace is the jeweled collar of beads or scintillating brilliants.

These are fashioned to fit the neckline perfectly and are cut just like demure round collars, many of them having little bows, jabots, tassels and other tailored touches where they fasten in front.

Some of them have the beads worked out in checkered or flowered design. Others are just rows upon rows of gay little brilliants. They are exceptionally good on velvet or crepe afternoon frocks and of course very, good on the very young.

THE REWARD OF LABOR

"Helen, hurry up and get your room cleaned. You know you want to go out today. Hurry up now and see what a good job you can do and how soon you can do it."

Helen swept and dusted and arranged with lightning speed. "Just as soon as I get this room set I'm going to run across to see if Millie is ready. Then we can go down to the old hickory tree and see if we can't get a pair of nuts before those boys get started."

"All finished, mother. Come and see."

"Not already? It can't be very well done if you have finished in this time."

But it was well done. Mother was pleased to say so. "And now that you have so much time suppose you clean Bob's room. It needs it badly. He is such a careless boy. Give him a good cleaning too."

"But, mother, I hurried up to get my room done so I could go out with Millie. The nuts will be all gone if I have to do Bob's room. Why doesn't he do his own room? He will get the nuts and I'll get none just because he is lazy and I worked hard."

"You have all day to gather nuts. I work all day long for both of you and never say a word. The first time I ask you for help you begin to complain. All right. Go ahead and gather your nuts. I can do your brother's room along with the rest. I hope some day you will learn to be a little unselfish."

"How about Bob?"

"Never mind Bob. We won't talk about it any more. Go along and gather your nuts."

Could anything be more unfair? First the child worked hard at top speed in order to save time for the outing she counted on. While her brother went scott free. He growled so much when asked to do anything that his mother avoided the asking. But the willing child was imposed upon, her day spoiled.

Labor ought to be rewarded promptly. If the child finishes the task in good time, instead of saying

MOST FRESHMEN AMONG UPPER RANK AT LAWRENCE

Approximately 52 per cent of Lawrence college freshmen rank in the upper three-fourths of the 16,000 high school seniors who took the state college aptitude test, according to data released by the college. The state college aptitude test is given annually to all high school seniors in the state to determine their aptitude for college work. The entire 16,000 were then ranked in order of their achievement as shown by the test. Students who matriculated at Lawrence from high schools outside the state took the same test soon after their arrival.

Nearly three-fourths of the entire freshman class obtained rankings in the upper half of the entire group. Fifteen students ranked in the upper 10 per cent which means that they are among the highest 1,600. Testing experts have discovered that there is a high correlation between the aptitude shown in the tests and later academic success in college. The test is designed to show weakness in basic subjects, a knowledge of which is considered essential for good college work. Authorities are agreed that while the aptitude test does not indicate the student's will to work, they maintain that after it is correlated with the student's high school grade a fair basis of judgment may be obtained.

At 4 o'clock Sugar will help give you new Vigor

Wise indeed is the businessman or woman who in mid-afternoon munches a piece of candy or takes "time out" for a moment for a sweetened drink. Such foods with their refined sugar content can do wonders in nourishing and thereby reviving a work-fagged body.

Scientists tell us that refined sugar cannot be matched by any other food product for quickness in nourishing the system. Its value, therefore, as presented in cookies, candy, milk drinks, tea or coffee, should not be overlooked. A glass of water sweetened with sugar has a remarkable revivifying effect.

These foods and beverages are readily accessible to the great majority of people in business.

Extensive experiments among office workers have proved that a sweet of some sort eaten in mid-afternoon renews vigor in a most speedy, satisfactory way. The Sugar Institute.

BILLION FOR JOBS DURING NEXT WINTER

Pacific Coast and Middle West Provide Largest Funds for Purpose

group is planning a pool of $150,000 a week to provide more jobs. The awarding of residential building contracts in New York city during October averaged $1,924,400 a day—$432,300 more a day than during last October.

Chicago's projects which are now and which are soon to be included in construction of two "Century of Progress" buildings, the expenditure of nearly $200,000,000 by the Inland public utilities companies for extensions and improvements, the widening of streets and construction of 1,000 miles of new ones, and extensive park work. An effort is now being made to get an immediate supreme court decision under which the city hopes to begin the expenditure of $12,000,000 on its water system.

PROGRAMS IN MICHIGAN

While Mayor Frank Murphy's relief committee has begun hunting jobs for 87,000 persons registered as unemployed in Michigan, the state has laid plans for carrying its contract program into the winter months. Other Michigan cities which, like Detroit, depend for their industrial life upon the automobile, have started "A Job For Every Man" campaigns, and, are extending their municipal jobs into the winter. Grand Rapids, Mich., has been heartened by the announcement by furniture factories of an increase in orders.

Indianapolis, the Twin Cities of Minnesota, Des Moines and Columbus, Ohio, among other cities in the middle west where unemployment, it is stated, has not reached a point of unusual concern, although these cities, as well as most every other one in the country, plan to push public works and private construction as palliatives.

Boston has taken hold of the question of work with the commencement of school building and with the inauguration of a $25,000,000 three year program to eliminate grade crossings.

This sentiment marks virtually all communities. It is evidenced by repeated statements of officials in Detroit, by the cry of "Virginia jobs for Virginians" and by this statement of the state labor commissioner of Iowa:

"Iowa has been able to take care of its own laborers all summer, virtually all unemployed being men who came here from outside. The prospect is for enough work to care for Iowa's own laborers throughout the winter, but not outsiders."

BIG-PIPE LINE PROJECT

In Iowa two pipe line companies plan an expenditure of $21,000,000 to construct natural gas and gasoline lines to 150 cities, absorbing 80,000 men who were employed during the summer in road construction. Other workers will find Iowa jobs in road construction costing $40,000,000, half of which will be paid out in wages.

State governments, though further removed from the immediate consequences of unemployment than cities, have taken the lead in outlining definite programs for road work, for the advancing of construction originally intended for spring and for maintenance.

The railroads likewise have been contributors to programs of work. At Cheyenne, Wyo., the Union Pacific has under way a terminal enlargement project involving $1,600,000. The Boston and Maine railroad has announced a new policy which will create work for 200 additional men along its lines. The Chicago and Alton railroad announced the reemployment of 1,200 men at its Bloomington, Ill. shops.

A definite program aiming at reducing the number of men without work has been outlined for New Jersey by the state civil service commission. It involves ten points, including the giving of overtime work, where such work is necessary, to extra employees, the limiting of regular hourly or per diem workers to 40 hours a week and the apportioning of new jobs to persons with dependents and without other means of support.

FEDERAL EMPLOYMENT

The federal government whose relief measures must, by their very nature, be general, has nevertheless afforded definite work for many thousands. The shipping board will

LA FOLLETTE OPPOSES PROPOSED AMENDMENT

Whitehall—(AP)—Philip F. LaFollette, Republican nominee for governor, today came out against the constitutional amendment to be voted on Nov. 4, which would give the governor power to veto parts of an appropriation bill as well as entire measures.

"Dictatorship is worse than the disease it attempts to correct," Mr. LaFollette said in an address here objecting to the amendment, because it would put too much power in the governor's hands.

"The effect of the amendment is to give to the chief executive additional power in the general conduct and control of the government," Mr. LaFollette said. "It is another step in the concentration of power in the executive office. Under an able and well-motivated executive, the power could be undoubtedly exercised at times to advantage and benefit for the general public. Under an executive who failed to live up to the high obligations of that office this new power could be used as a dangerous and high-handed weapon."

He claimed arguments advanced in behalf of the amendment are ones of dictatorship as opposed to those against it which are those of self-government.

and Jackson, Miss., is experiencing a mild boom, due to oil. A $43,000,000 hydro-electric project in Arkansas awaits only federal authorization before affording work for many hundreds.

The entire south is taking steps to prevent a winter influx of jobless from other parts of the country.

OFF-YEAR ELECTION
RECORD VOTE SEEN IN UNITED STATES

Registration in Several States Indicates Increase
Over 1926

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington—(CPA)—An unprecedented vote for an off-year election is anticipated next Tuesday. While there is nothing on the horizon approaching the 1928 figures the registration in several states already indicates an increase over the last congressional election, namely 1926 when no contest for the presidency was involved.

The New York state figures show an increase of about 13 per cent in the registration this year as compared with 1926. There is a falling off in the upstate and rural counties of New York which may or may not indicate apathy on the part of the voters. Certainly a diminished registration in strong Republican districts will tend to aid Governor Roosevelt, Democrat, in his campaign for reelection.

In 20 counties, all normally Republican, there were decreases from the 1926 figures varying from 5 to 10 per cent. Most of this is dry territory and may represent a protest against the vetness of the Republican party and a disinclination to vote for the independent dry candidate.

It is interesting to note that the total registration in New York state in 1928 when former Gov. Al Smith was running for the presidency was 4,885,000 and that the registration this year is approximately 4,000,000 showing a natural falling off from the presidential year but when this year's figures are compared with 3,618,000 in 1926 it will be seen that there has been a substantial increase in registration in an off-year election.

The general opinion has always prevailed in politics that voters are apathetic either when they are registering a protest or when they are not particularly stirred up over the issues. This year there are signs that the economic depression and prohibition has stirred up unusual interest in many states and that such indifference to registration as has been noted is probably due in large part to a feeling of protest against the nominees of both major parties. The probabilities are that in New Jersey where both Republican and Democratic candidates are wet there also will be a falling off in the vote in the dry Republican counties. In Illinois an unusually heavy vote is anticipated and it is because the issues there are more clearly drawn on prohibition and this is also the case in Massachusetts where the cleavage on the wet and dry issue will bring out a large vote.

The weather of course has much to do with the size of the final vote particularly in rural districts but the registration figures are always a pretty good sign of the interest taken by the people in elections.

Good Deer Hunting Found
In Popple River Country

BY B. A. CLAFLIN
In a short period of a few weeks the deer hunters will again come into their own. There is scarcely a city or town in Wisconsin that does not have one or more devotees of this age-old sport. It is a natural trait of man to love the chase. Things have changed greatly toward our wild life, particularly in the last few years. The more gentlemanly ones, or radicals, perhaps, decry the killing of deer. They call it inhuman. But why is it any more inhuman than the killing of beef animals that are knocked down and have their throats cut? It is simply because deer are shot with a rifle.

In early days the pioneers were forced to depend largely upon their rifles for an existence. It is true they shot deer only whenever meat was needed, and not for the sport of hunting. Yet that can hardly be said to have meant an easier death for the deer. And besides, their rifles were far inferior to the arms of today. Without a doubt they allowed more wounded animals to escape.

The Indian has always killed deer for meat. But one thing can be said in his favor: He is a better hunter than the white man. Seldom does an animal escape him once it is marked for meat. He can track down a deer with comparatively little effort. He knows their habits, knows just what course they will take in fleeing him, and by cutting off miles that would be absorbed in following their wide curves of flight, he can come onto the animal and kill it with little effort and an unfailing certainty. Few white men can do this.

The Virginia, or White-tailed deer are the ones common to Wisconsin. Our covers and natural environments for these animals are unsurpassed. But our laws should coincide with those of Michigan.

In all northern Wisconsin no finer deer country exists than that along the Popple river. The covers are largely popple slashings, and these the deer like. Plenty of waterways abound, too, and they are essential to the welfare of the animals.

About five miles north of Fence, on the Popple river, lives a settler named Hedmark. He is in one of the best deer regions we have. He makes no pretense of running a hunting resort, however. He farms, traps and hunts, and will take in a limited number of hunters. And camping on his land can be undertaken with comfort and an assurance of getting from him milk, eggs and vegetables.

Most deer are shot within a range of less than a hundred yards. For that reason one of the most ideal deer rifles is a 32 special carbine. Its short barrel permits its quick handling in brush. Its bullet is plenty large to insure the necessary shocking power at the range it is usually fired. Many contend that other kinds of rifles are best, and that they can shoot them as rapidly as they could the shorter barreled gun, but I became convinced once when I witnessed a hunter, using a carbine such as I have described, put three bullets into the head of a magnificent buck in that many seconds, and before the deer had covered fifty feet, and it was all done in a small opening of thick cover.

HOLD TRYOUTS NOV. 10
FOR MEN'S DEBATE TEAM

Tryouts for the Lawrence college men's debate squad will be held on Monday, Nov. 10, according to a notice posted by Prof. A. L. Franzke, Lawrence debate coach. All students interested in debate will meet in the forensic office on Monday, Nov. 3, to receive their issues. There will be no decision as to the size of the squad until all students have been heard in the tryouts. Professor Franzke said, "Plans for a freshman squad are not interlocking because it has been impossible to find anyone to coach the group."

Last year more than 30 men appeared in the tryouts and only 12 were selected for the squad. Eleven members of last year's squad will appear again this year but Professor Franzke pointed out that freshman material stands an excellent chance of displacing experienced members unless the squad is enlarged this year. Men's teams in the Midwest conference this year are debating the question, "Resolved: That the several states should enact legislation providing for compulsory unemployment insurance to which the employer shall contribute."

Sports Question Box

Question—Please explain the popularity of Benny Leonard in fistic circles even though he has been retired for the past five years?

Answer — Leonard was a clean fighter and a mighty good one. His conduct in and out of the ring has been a model for youngsters whether in boxing or in other forms of competitive sports. Benny knew his place and never refused to give the other fellow a helping hand.

Question—Ball beats the runner to first base but it is slightly fumbled by the first baseman and the runner crosses the base while the is going on. Afterward the ball is firmly held by the first baseman. Is this an out?

Answer—It is not.

Question—If Lou Little does not produce a winning team at Columbia this year will he be termed a failure?

Answer—To do so would be unfair. Mr. Little is just getting acquainted with the material he has on hand and, undoubtedly will produce distinctly successful results next year.

Question—To what kind of a batter do you pitch a drop ball?

Answer—To any of them

Question—Who is the president of the National Football League?

Answer—Joseph F. Carr of Columbia, O.

Question — Is there a minimum salary in major league baseball?

Answer—No.

Question—Whom does the National Boxing Association recognize as flyweight champion?

Answer—Frankie Genaro.

BLACK HAWK HOCKEY TEAM HAS EXTRA GOALIE

Chicago—(AP)—The Chicago Black Hawks will establish a national league hockey precedent this season by carrying an extra goalie.

The extra will be Alex Wood, star of the Regina, Sask., Aces last year, who has turned pro by joining the Hawks. He will understudy "Chuck" Gordiner, regular Black Hawk goalie.

Another Black Hawk innovation will be the employment of a full time physical instructor. Emil Iversen. He will work independently of the club trainer, devoting all his time to physical instruction.

Mason City, Ia. — Gilbert Attell, San Francisco, and Johnny Martin, Sioux Falls, S. D., drew (6)

BENNETT WINS AWARD

"Chuck" Bennett was awarded the Chicago Tribune trophy for being the most valuable player in 1928 Western conference football. He was a three year varsity halfback at Indiana. Bennett is one of the fastest men on the team. He weighs 190 pounds.

Following in the footsteps of Bennett, Willie Glassgow of Iowa won the Tribune Big Ten cup in 1929. Next to Benny Friedman, Glassgow is the highest priced player in professional football. Glassgow is a triple threat artist but specializes in punting. He tips the scale at 190.

Mayes McLain, who played with the Haskell Indians before enrolling at Iowa, is a 250 pound fullback. The big fellow is a wonder at backing up a line and is generally good for yardage when on the offensive. McLain tossed several 60-yard forward passes in the game against Philadelphia.

Last season he starred for the Olympic club in San Francisco.

LEWIS AT FULLBACK

"Tiny" Lewis, a mere 210 pounder, is credited with being the best fullback in Northwestern's football history. Lewis does the punting when Glassgow is decorating the bench. In 1929, Lewis was the star of the Ashland, Ky., club.

Cy Kahl of North Dakota is showing lots of class as a running back. It was his touchdown that placed him in the lead role in the defeat of the Chicago Bears in the "starlight" game at Portsmouth a week ago tonight. Kahl weighs 195 pounds and is a splendid open field runner.

Ray Novotny comes from Ohio university and in 1929 was listed as the fourth highest scorer in college at ranks. Speed is the middle name of this 149-pound Ohioan.

MARTIN KEEPS IN TRIM

Orval Martin, Purdue's great mid-distance runner who graduated last June, is keeping in perfect physical condition these days by directing the Purdue cross-country team in its workouts. Martin runs with the harriers practically every afternoon.

A member of the Morris family has been captain of the high school football team of Seymour, in West Texas, eight out of nine years.

CARLS CANCEL GAME BECAUSE OF EPIDEMIC

St. Paul, Minn.—Cancellation of the football game between Carleton college and the University of South Dakota, scheduled for Vermillion next Saturday, was agreed Wednesday by the Minnesota and South Dakota state boards of health because of the quarantine at Carleton due to infantile paralysis.

Boston Americans Will Be Much Stronger In 1931

BY JOHN B. FOSTER
Copyright, 1930
NEW YORK (CFA)—After Tom Zachery left the New York American league club and gained some success with the Boston National league club last season, it was agreed that New York did not gain much by permitting him to get away. The Boston club was willing enough to pay the waiver price for a player of Zachery's skill and experience. Zachery won eleven games for Boston and lost six. He did even better than that in 1929, when he had the Yankees to bat run in for him. Boston may have lost in permitting Bob Smith to go to Chicago but if the outfielder from California, Schulmerich, meets expectations Boston will have gained a daily batter who can hit better than most of the batters in the line-up did last season.

With Zachary and Sherdel, Frankhouse and Selbold, Brandt, Cantwell, and Cunningham, and such other pitching strength as the team may gather, the Braves will not be pitcher plus next season but they will have a better start than they had last spring. Smith won eleven games for Boston and lost fourteen. He was a willing worker and would have won more games there if he had had better batters to take him along. He will probably not be asked to work as hard when he is with the Cubs, and at intervals of four days he is a tough chap to beat.

While the Braves may have lost a little on this exchange, they figure they have gained much by drafting Earl Sheely from the Pacific coast league. Sheely simply cannot be kept out of the major league baseball. He played a splendid first base for the White Sox, who cast about to get more speed and have yet to find a man who was as good all around as Sheely.

Pittsburgh took him next and after one season let him go because he did not bat as hard as the Pirates thought a first baseman should bat. Barney Dreyfuss always has been in a tangle about first base. He has never been as well equipped in that position as most of the other teams of the National league.

Sheely went back to California this summer and showed the Pacific coast league a good first baseman. Naturally he became attractive again and the Boston Nationals went after him. He can play it base as well as Sister and can play it better than Neun.

St. James, fire of Jamestown, winner of the Belmont Futurity, won the event seven years ago.

Evening clothes, including velvet cloaks and low gowns, were worn by some of the feminine rooters at the Manhattan-Oglethorpe night football game in New York.

Milo Labratovitch, 216-pound Wisconsin tackle, fell on four loose balls in the Wisconsin-Penn battle.

The open golf champion of Wisconsin is Johnny Revolta, 19-year-old professional of the Swan Lake club of Portage.

Harvard's second team chose to play Amherst rather than see the first team battle Dartmouth.

REVOLUTION IN BRAZIL TO FREE COFFEE SUPPLY

Result Will Be Lower Prices in This Commodity All Over World

BY LEMUEL F. PARTON
Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press
New York—The Brazilian revolution was a coffee war, and undoubtedly will free for world trade between 20,000,000 and 30,000,000 bags of coffee, held in defense of the "valorization" system of the outgoing government. This means lower coffee prices here, and the victory of the Vargas faction, fighting the coffee lords of Sao Paulo, has a critical bearing on the $450,000,000 of American loans to federal state governments of Brazil and the $250,000,000 invested in Brazilian utilities and industries.

Thus down around the New York coffee and sugar exchange, oldest and largest of American commodity exchanges, there is a mosaic of seasoned opinion and observation which pieces together a complete economic pattern for this latest South American revolution and sets it apart from the casual and seasonal encounters between the ins and the outs down in those countries.

The Brazilian coffee now stored in support of the "coffee defense" system has been estimated as high as 40,000,000 bags. Gordon Eytan, statistician of the coffee and sugar exchange estimated it roughly as "perhaps more than 20,000,000."

EQUALS YEAR'S SUPPLY

This is equivalent to just about one year's world supply, of which the United States ordinarily takes about 75 per cent. Annual Brazilian crops have been as high as 20,000,000 bags. This year's crop is about 14,000,000.

The ending of the valorization system, with its artificial maintenance of high prices, has been one of the main objectives of the Alianza, Liberal, the party led by Dr. Getulio Vargas, now in power with the overthrow of the Washington Luis government. The Brazilians had stabilized politics considerably by dealing the presidency in rotation to the governors of Sao Paulo, Gernas and Rio Grande do Sul, President Luis, from Sao Paulo, broke this record low sending in as his successor Dr. Julio Prestes, also from Sao Paulo.

As interpreted here, this action was due to fear that a president from another state would upset the coffee oligarchy of Sao Paulo, while Dr. Getulio Vargas got only 70,000 of the 2,000,000 votes cast, there were bitter charges of fraud, the election coming at a time of rising opposition to the coffee defense policy. It was the contention of Dr. Vargas and his followers that this system not only made Brazil a one-product country, but, maintaining artificial world price levels, stimulated over planting in other coffee producing countries.

BRITISH WATCH CLOSELY
Great Britain was watching developments closely, as the reserve coffee stocks were used to guarantee British loans on which the Brazilians paid from 10 to 12 per cent. The stake may account for Great Britain's tact and skillful diplomacy which left her in the right camp when the revolution succeeded—as contrasted with the less fortunate guess of Washington. The necessity of meeting the interest on these loans from public tax funds thrown in with the Vargas section multitudes of citizens not directly concerned with the coffee industry. The Brazilian middle class has been forming slowly since the beginning of the Republic in 1889, and farmers producing rubber, meat and cocoa found themselves drifting into an alliance with the liberal Vargas party, against the coffee barons.

For the past year, astute observers of the ups and downs of coffee, on the coffee and sugar exchange, have realized that a major economic engagement was being fought. There has been a vast amount of hedging and manipulating by Brazilian operators, or their representatives, here, who apparently foresaw that the steadily mounting dam built up by valorization must eventually break. The price range on the New York market since the revolution started has been about 200 points—now 100 points up and now 100 points down. There was at first a sharp break, then a decided rally and at last a deep slump, with the Vargas victory indicating the probable release of the reserves.

RODEO COWBOYS IN DEMAND AT NEW YORK

Society in Big Flutter Over Plainsmen from Western States

Copyright, 1930, By Cons. Press
New York—(CFA)—The endless, jangling strains of "The Chisholm Trail" have hit Park-ave and Westchester. With the rodeo here, New York society is suddenly in a big flutter over the visiting cowboys and they are being roped and hog-tied, with silken strands, for entertainment purposes in the reigning salons. The prairie epics of their musical repertoire, accompanied by a guitar or mouth organ, are exciting new discoveries to the jaded dwellers in this penthouse lotus land.

Among those who have been commanded for these nightly work-outs are Jack Webb, of Marland, Okla.; Chick Davis, of Glacial Park, Mont.; George King, of Clifton, Ariz.; Everett Cheatham, of Taos, New Mexico; Ike Rude, of Mangrum, Okla.; and Bob Calen, of Fort Worth, Tex. What spare time the boys have after their regular day and night work is being used up by the radio. "I can't stand much more of this life," said Jack Webb. "It's too tough for me. I got to have more room and more air and a chance to sleep once

2 MILWAUKEE PAPERS TO MERGE BUSINESSES

Milwaukee—(AP)—The Milwaukee Sentinel, owned by Paul Block, and the Wisconsin News, owned by William Randolph Hearst, today announced merger of the businesses of the papers, effective Nov. 1. Both papers will be published under direction of Mr. Block.

The Sentinel, one of the oldest papers in the northwest, was established as a weekly in 1837 and shortly after became a morning daily. The News, an afternoon paper, began operating 10 years later.

It is understood from authoritative sources that both papers will be published in the Wisconsin News building. Both are members of the Associated Press.

VERY EXCLUSIVE
London—One of the most unusual clubs in the world is here—that of the ex-junatics. Every member who is admitted must show a certificate showing that one time, or other he was a lunatic and that he is pronounced cured. The club is one of the most exclusive in London and the membership is not very large.

In a while, I wouldn't stay here if they'd give me the town. We like some of these New York tunes and we'll take them back home with us. They'll go big on Saturday nights, out on the range."

PARIS UNDECIDED ON CAP AND HAT

So Women There Wear Combinations of Both, and They're Quite Smart

BY AILEEN LAMONT
New York—(CFA)—Paris, in spots a bit undecided between the close-fitted cap and the tricorne, has decided to wear both. Le Monnier has a hat which struts out to be a taupe velours cap, high off the forehead. But on the right side it leaps forth into a tricorne, with the front point perched at the outer edge of the right eyebrow. Fetching? Mais, oui—if it's the sort of thing you can wear.

The once lowly rabbit has grown so aristocratic that today you can hardly tell lapin from mole. In true mole color, the rabbit coat is a luscious affair; light but warm, suited to the needs of an evening wrap. The fur is soft enough, too, for flares, panels, and the other embellishments of the season.

And what stockings to wear with the new evening shades? Those pretty but perplexing shades which the wrong hosiery tint can ruin? Well, with the evening blues, stockings in shades known as champagne or amber are good. With evening black and white, or black or white, the eggshell and cameo shell are good. And with gowns in the French pink tinges, nothing is better than French nude or mellow. With all-white, the French nude is also highly satisfactory.

"TREES" SUBJECT OF TALK BY ROHAN

Appleton School Superintendent Addresses Chilton Kiwanis Club

Special to Post-Crescent
Chilton—The regular weekly meeting of the Chilton Kiwanis club was held at the Hotel Chilton, Tuesday evening, with E. J. Rohan, superintendent of the Appleton public school system, as speaker. His subject was the part that trees play in the economic life of the nation.

Citing the Chinese nation as an example of the blighting effects of forest destruction, he showed that our nation is following the destruction example of the Chinese people. The Yellow sea on the Chinese coast is fast filling up, he said with the best part of the soil that is yearly washed seaward by the floods that unchecked by trees, choke the river mouths with sediment which, with forest protection would have been conserved to feed the teeming millions. This nation's policy of forest destruction has denuded the head water regions of the Mississippi River system and is fast making a Yellow Sea out of the Gulf of Mexico, Mr. Rohan declared.

Speaking of the reforestation policy in Wisconsin he said it would take 7,000 years to restore the forest acreage that has been wantonly destroyed through a vicious system of taxation coupled with the unchecked personal greed for wealth, he said.

He closed with a plea to his audience to stress the economic value of forests.

A Democratic rally was held at the new auditorium Tuesday evening, the speakers being Michael Riley of Fond du Lac, candidate for congress from this district, Charles Broughton of Sheboygan, editor of the Sheboygan Press and Attorney Joseph Martin of Green Bay.

KAUKAUNA MAYOR ANSWERS TRIPP ON WATER LEVEL

Group Will Fight Hard Against Association, Fargo Promises

Kaukauna—Opposition voiced by the Association for Relief of High Water at Oshkosh through its president, Alan H. Tripp, against any proposal to raise the level of Lake Winnebago in spring to a point more than 15 inches above the government dam at Menasha, will only serve to make the backers of the movement to raise the lake level work for it with a more determined effort, Mayor B. W. Fargo indicated Thursday after he learned of the statements made by Mr. Tripp.

"This talk about opening sluices to prevent an odor of stagnant water is a subterfuge," Mr. Tripp said. "Navigation continues on our lake when the water drops to six inches below the crest of the dam and opening the sluices to clear out the lower river only takes a few hours and can be used to prevent unhealthy and unsanitary conditions, even if it does hinder our navigation for a short period, as our health comes first."

"I have read Mr. Tripp's interview with interest," Mayor Fargo said. "It will, no doubt, be of great interest to about 75,000 people in the lower Fox river valley that their concern about river flowage is just scheming and 'subterfuge'."

"It also will be of great interest to them to know that the government has delegated the control of water to Mr. Tripp, and that the mayors and village chairmen may as well bring their knitting to the meeting here Thursday night as it would be a waste of time to even discuss this matter."

Mayors and village chairmen of the Fox river valley will meet at the Hotel Kaukauna Thursday to form an organization to work for raising the lake level from 15 inches above the Menasha government dam to 2 1/2 inches. The meeting will be preceded by a 6:30 dinner.

HINDU ACTORS FAIL TO SHOW EVEN ONCE

Act Isn't That Contracted for, New York Producers Declare

BY WARD MOREHOUSE
Special Dispatch to Post-Crescent
New York—(CFA)—Sisir Kumar Bhaduri and his Hindu actors came 9,800 miles, 42 days of traveling, and didn't even play a one-night stand.

The m.b.-advertised troupe from the Natymandir theater, Calcutta, scheduled to open Tuesday night at the Biltmore, did not and 16 New Yorkers ever see it they'll probably do so in India.

The show that reached the port of New York wasn't it seems, the show that was contracted for and when Carl Reed, presenting it in association with Elizabeth Marbury, saw a rehearsal he was horrified. The Nautech dancers, I'm told, weren't Nautech dancers, the actors weren't actors and the entire entertainment was pretty terrible. So Mr. Reed told the chairman office that he'd rather not open.

Bhaduri himself, I'm told, wasn't bad, but one actor can't make a show—not even one from India.

The new George Kelly play, "Philip Goes Forth," will reach New York in January. After a year's work Mr. Kelly, one of the country's important dramatists, has delivered the completed script to Rowland Stebbins. Mr. Stebbins said he regards it as the finest thing Kelly has written, that casting will begin immediately and that rehearsals will start the first week in December. Copyright, 1930, by New York Sun

While working with the horse recently Gorseger received a kick in the eye which was so serious that the eye had to be removed. Physicians said after the operation that a cancerous growth had formed on the eyeball and that it would have cost him his life had not the horse's kick made necessary its removal.

GROUP TESTING FOR ABORTION IS URGED OF FARMERS

Veterinarians and Dairymen Just Learning Something of Disease

BY W. F. WINSEY
Dale—For the economical testing of cows for contagious abortion, Dr. V. S. Johnson, veterinarian specialist of the state Department of Agriculture and Markets advised Dale farmers here last week to form community groups and to have all the herds of the group tested at the same time. The group method will shorten up the travel of the veterinarians who do the testing as well as the time of testing. The Dale meeting was one of a series conducted by Gus Sell, county agent, in Outagamie this week.

Mr. Sell discussed the prevalence of contagious abortion in the county and the inroads the disease is making in the profits of dairying by cutting down milk production and preventing the sale of cattle for production to buyers of a number of states. Dr. Larson presented the history of the disease in Wisconsin, described the symptoms, suggested treatment and declared that there is absolutely no cure. A farmer who purchases cures such as acid brown sugar, minerals and bilbe goats throws away his money. The disease may be eradicated from a farm yard if sanitary methods are adopted and used.

"Contagious abortion is no new disease of cattle," said Dr. Larson, but for a long time veterinarians have known very little about it. Cows would abort and as they would stop after a year or two, we thought they were cured by the medicine we gave them.

"Some of the symptoms of contagious abortion are the dropping of premature calves, udder trouble, scours in calves and enlarged joints on the legs of calves.

"Symptoms NOT RELIABLE
"As a cow may abort that is not infected with the germs of contagious abortion, from injury or otherwise, and cows may not abort after the first time, these symptoms are not reliable. The only reliable test for infection is the blood test.

"Usually after the first abortion the body of the cows builds up a defense against the germs of contagious abortion as the body of a boy builds up a defense against the mites that made him sick after his first smoke and prevents a repetition of the nausea. In the one case the germs of abortion remain in the body of the cow, and in the other the nicotine is always present in the smoke.

"This defense against the germ of abortion developed by the body of the cow and her failure to abort always gives the owner the impression that the cow is cured. The blood test, however, always proves that the germs are still present and although the cow does not abort she is loaded with germs that may be transmitted to other cows in the herd and cause them to abort.

"The first thing to do with a herd infected with contagious abortion is to apply the blood test to each of the animals. The veterinarian who applies the tests will suggest sanitary methods for preventing the further spread of the disease.

"These methods will include the placing of the infected cows on one side of the stable and the clean cows on the other side; the division of the yard and pasture so that the infected and the clean animals cannot get together; preventing cows from coming in contact with the cows of neighboring herds; even though the fences, and keeping heifers out of community pastures where they are liable to exposure.

"Great care must be exercised in the stable containing infected and clean cows to prevent the spread of the infection through feed, bedding and cows aborting."

Your Birthday

WHAT TOMORROW MEANS TO YOU
"SCORPIO"

If October 31st is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a. m. to 10 a. m., from 2 p. m. to 3 p. m. and from 6 p. m. to 7:30 p. m. The danger periods are from noon to 1 p. m. and from 10 p. m. to 11:15 p. m.

Disconcerting influences will be in force on this date, and you will abandon profitable for unprofitable pursuits. Frustration of plans, New interests will spring up, which will prove to be of benefit. Worry regarding young people.

The child born on this October 31st will have a fruitful and successful life. Confidence, energy and perseverance, generosity and enthusiasm are shown. It will love pleasure, amusement and show. It will take an interest in scientific studies, and the investigation of facts.

You have a very positive nature, but one which needs to be toned down to make it an altogether pleasing one. You are extremely honest, sincere and outspoken, but you do not know the meaning of diplomacy and are always unconsciously putting your foot into things or "spilling the beans."

You will always be a diamond in the rough, but none the less genuine. You will merrily romp through the world in your clumsy way, always ready to help and cheer those about you. You have a heart of gold, and are unselfish and generous to the Nth degree. You are very clean minded, and clean mouthed.

You are rather matter-of-fact in religious views, taking the intellectual or even somewhat materialistic view of things rather than the emotional and spiritual. You have an analytical mind, one which classifies, analyzes, studies and draws conclusions; doubting until it has reasons for believing, and always requiring reasons for all things—no "why" or "wherefore." It would always be best for you to be your own boss in your work, for it is not easy for you to be subservient to others. You are sometimes lacking in method, wanting in application, or are absent-minded, "wags."

Of Interest To Farmers

PRESIDENT OF CHEESE BOARD INVITES PROBE

Says He Can See No Good Reason for Decline in Cheese Prices

BY W. F. WINSEY
The Plymouth cheese board assumes jurisdiction of actual sales on the board and has nothing to do with any private arrangement entered into by either buyer or seller, based on sales made on the Plymouth exchange board.

H. G. Davis, president of the Wisconsin Cheese Exchange at Plymouth made this comment upon articles which appeared in newspapers last week and which were based upon the announcement of the Wisconsin department of agriculture and markets of an investigation of the methods used by the cheese-board in determining weekly the prices at which cheese will be purchased.

The investigation has been ordered since the heavy slump on October 10 when prices fell from 17 to 15 1/2 cents on the board. This break of the market is attributed to the C. A. Straubel Company, Antigo, which dumped 1,000 Twins on the board.

The Straubel company with central offices in Green Bay and with several branches, is said to be affiliated with the Kraft-Phenix corporation, which in turn is an influential part of the National Dairy Products corporation.

While it is generally accepted that the board prices affect the entire cheese market and have an influence on other milk products, Mr. Davis said that if such is the situation, it is beyond the help of the buyers and sellers on the Wisconsin Cheese Exchange. The board has no control over other sales than those made on the board, he said.

"We challenge the agricultural department to prove that large private cheese buying concerns have advised the board to go slow and if such a statement was made, it was only their own opinion," he said.

The department should know, if they do not, that other dairy products are greatly depressed in price both butter and eggs, so that prior to the decline the price of cheese would have been indicative of quantities of milk going into cheese, causing heavy overproduction on a market that now has more products than a year ago, and that the Plymouth board does not order the lowering or raising of any prices."

Charles Laack, president of the Farmers' Call Board at Plymouth stated that he believes the investigation ordered by the department of agriculture and markets is justified.

"Cheese has no business dropping like it did a week ago," he said. "I do not know why it dropped but I don't think there was any good reason for it. Our board stands ready to be investigated any time they want to investigate. In fact, our operations have already been investigated."

The Cheese Reporter made the above comments on the prices of cheese, on how those prices are supposed to be made, and on the investigation of the habits of the Plymouth Cheese Board proposed by the department of agriculture and markets.

COOPERATIVE MEMBER DRIVE PROGRESSING

BY W. F. WINSEY
Shawano—The drive for members in the Badger Consolidated Cooperative of Shawano-co, now being conducted in the eastern part of the county by the temporary officers of the cooperative a group of volunteers and representatives of the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture and Markets is progressing satisfactorily according to the promoters.

When farmers close up their fall work in the fields and can be interviewed in their home the number of contracts needed to fill the proposed list of members will be signed in double quick time, and the cooperative will be ready to present the other numbers on the preparatory program for raising and marketing dairy products. Between 750 and 800 contracts have been signed by dairymen and only 1,000 are required for beginning operations.

Contracts of the Badger Consolidated Cooperative have been studied and approved by the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture and Markets, by the College of Agriculture, and by the National Cheese Producers Federation. The federal farm board has faith enough in the contract to loan money to the cooperative.

A meeting of Shawano-co dairymen interested in the proposed cooperative will be held in Navarino, Tuesday night. Among the speakers will be Math. M. Wallich, a Shawano attorney, and County Agent G. F. Baummeister.

TURKEY CROP LARGER THIS YEAR IN STATE

Madison—While the national average is lower, Wisconsin's turkey crop this year will be somewhat larger than that of 1929 according to the crop reporting service of the Wisconsin and United States departments of agriculture. Reports indicate that the number of turkeys showed an increase in the midwestern state while other states showed a slight decrease, the total for the United States being 3 per cent under a year ago.

In general the dry hot weather of the past season was exceptionally favorable for raising young turkeys and the proportion of turkeys raised to poulters hatched was larger than usual. In spite of the shortage of food supplies in some areas, the condition of young turkeys about Oct 1 this year as reported by growers was about the same as on the same date last year. The proportion of turkeys that will be ready for the Thanksgiving market will be practically the same as in 1929.

Wisconsin growers expect to market 60 per cent of their turkeys for the Thanksgiving trade and about 30 per cent for the Christmas season, the remaining 10 per cent going to a later market.

BROWN SUGAR FAILS TO REMEDY ABORTION

Madison—(AP)—A brown and brown sugar preparation which its manufacturers claim will remedy abortion in cattle has failed in tests, according to Dr. W. W. Wisnicky, chief of the division of livestock sanitation of the state department of agriculture and markets.

"Although it was claimed that the preparation would cure abortion in 10 days, tests made at the end of that period and later showed that the cows continued to harbor abortion bacteria," Dr. Wisnicky said.

Introduction
A FUGITIVE RESCUED
THE half thoroughbred leaped sideways, ears thrust forward, flanks trembling. The girl in the saddle balanced herself.

"Easy, Desmond! Only a rattler, boy." The horse whinnied nervously. All around, the bare, brown plains stretched endlessly, flat, monotonous, unadorned, save for occasional dwarf oaks that fought a hopeless battle against the scorching Texas sun and blasting winds. There was an immensity to the landscape that was overpowering.

Nature ruled it all but unchallenged. Man was a puny creature tolerated on sufferance. The very sounds that pierced its cloak of silence emphasized an implacable hostility to life; the disconsolate moaning of a lost calf by a waterhole, the cawing of a pair of buzzards drifting on wide-spread pinions toward the hazy distance that was Mexico. In all those miles of emptiness not a human being was visible except this girl, lithe, brown, boyishly erect, in khaki shirt and breeches and soft felt hat, whose eyes roved fearlessly about her, with special concern for the taut line of wire fence on her right hand, besides herself the only sign of civilization.

It was a sag in the wire which caused her to rein in abruptly.

"That's what we're after, Desmond," she confided to her mount. "Any yearling could scramble through that gap."

She slipped to the ground, and snatched the steppelag from the saddle-bow. "I reckon some of Villa's peons rode this break last night," she murmured, lifting the wire into space and hammering it secure. "I'll have to tell Uncle Jim to count the river herds 'Hullo!"

The silence was shattered by a crackling series of detonations, but Alexandra Marley, bred on the Mexican border, knew rifle fire when she heard it. Then her eyes marked down the buzzards swooping over a clump of oaks beyond the sluggish trickle of the Rio Grande, a few hundred yards distant.

"We'll have to look after this, pony," she informed Desmond. A bullet whined by her ear, but she pushed her mount resolutely into the water, scrambling up the farther bank in time to see a single rider burst from the shelter of the oaks—an American, she realized at a glance. A dozen sombrero-crowned figures galloped after him, rifles spouting, yelping threats.

The girl galloped straight for the river bank, shouting a stream of orders in Gringo Spanish and cow-boy English.

At sight of her the firing ceased, and the Mexicans reined in their panting mounts, cowering up a bit sheepishly to where the new arrival on the scene had halted, surveying them with flashing eyes.

"Pave el fuego? This is my land. Clear out." And recognizing the squat leader of the Mexicans: "You, Jose! What's the Gringo done?"

"Ees desairter," Jose responded explosively. The girl cast one look at the American, who had halted beside her. An amused grin on his lean, beaked features.

"I'm a newspaper correspondent," he said for himself. "Been with Pancho this last year. He seems to hanker more for my company than I do for his."

"You must know too much, Jose. spill your stuff. What's Pancho got against Senor—"

"—Howard, Blaine Howard," the fugitive volunteered. Jose shrugged his shoulders.

"Humph," she grunted, boyishly authoritative. "Pancho been running any guns across lately?" Jose's face became blank.

"No sabe, Senorita Dagger." But Howard slapped a hand on his dusty thigh.

"That's it. He did run a couple of big shipments—last month and this."

"Well, you aren't figuring on any confidential conversations with the border guards?"

"Of course not! I'm set for Europe—where the fighting comes man-size."

She rounded upon Jose. "You hear? This man means no harm to Pancho."

"But Pancho, 'e say keep 'eem." Jose objected doubtfully.

"You tell Pancho, Dagger Marley is responsible for Senor Howard! And if Pancho makes trouble for you, come on over the line, and I'll put you up in the Figure 2 bunkhouse. How's that, amigo? Fríoles and all, three times a day, and thirty pesos a month besides."

Jose grinned. "Esta bueno! Pancho knows I'm a good Villista."

"A good Villista," chuckled Howard. "What's that?"

She laughed and drew back her head.

"Yo no quiero Carranzistas, Yo lo quiero Villistas."

Jose and his brigands exploded in riotous mirth, and the saddest peon of the lot carolled merrily:

"La Cucaracha, la Cucaracha, Yo no qui la comen. Pocmo tende, pocmo vate. Marihuano que fumar."

"Adios," waved the girl.

"Adios, Senorita," they responded in chorus, and cantered away.

OPTIMISM DROPS IN WALL STREET ON NEW REPORTS

Colorado Fuel and Iron Reduces Dividend on 50 Per Cent Profit Slump

BY CHARLES F. SPEARE
Copyright, 1930, By Cons. Press
Wall Street, New York—(CFA)—The optimism that has been increasing in Wall Street during the past week was modified Wednesday by the quarterly reports of some of the independent iron and steel companies with one of them, Colorado Fuel & Iron, reducing its dividends after showing a 50 per cent drop in profits in the first nine months of the year.

To this discouraging array of figures were added the unfavorable comments on the outlook of the steel trade by the trade journals and the evidence that steel ingot production has declined to 50 per cent according to one authority, and to 49 per cent on the reckoning of another, against between 52 and 53 per cent a week ago.

The "Iron age", in commenting on the situation, said, "with further declines reported in scrap prices and in ingot output, the immediate outlook in the iron and steel industry lacks promise". The view presented was that "neither the trade stabilization program presented to the American Iron & Steel Institute last week nor the effort to alleviate unemployment by stimulating the construction industries has yet had any influence upon iron and steel."

RECOVERY DISTANT?

It was indicated that it will take some time for the efforts to promote trade to show in the iron and steel industry where the "consensus of opinion" is that whatever demand is developed will do little more than offset seasonal November and December recessions, and that a genuine upturn cannot be expected before the automotive industry revives, probably next spring.

A significant statement was made by the "Iron age" to the effect that steel producers are urging the railroads to place orders for cars and locomotives as a means of offsetting losses of tonnage in other directions. It is indicated that the carriers might be willing to order more equipment, even though they have a surplus at the present time, if arrangements could be made to finance this equipment up to the extent of 100 per cent of the entire cost.

This would be much in contrast with the practice that has been common to all of the railroads for years, inasmuch as the regular method is to issue equipment trust certificates to the amount of 75 or 80 per cent of the purchase price so that the purchaser of these equipments had an equity of between 20 and 25 per cent.

It is on this basis that these securities have enjoyed such a high investment rating and have been made legal for savings banks in different states.

The assumption is that the carriers today have low cash reserves and are willing to negotiate additional equipment trust certificates on which the ordinary cash requirements are considerable. In such a situation the equipment manufacturer would undoubtedly assume the 20 or 25 per cent portion of the cost.

Arrangements for the anniversary celebration are under the supervision of the Rev. L. D. Utts, rector of All Saints church.

turer would undoubtedly assume the 20 or 25 per cent portion of the cost. Accepting the fact that average prices of steel are at the lowest level now since 1921, Wall Street was looking up the records today of United States steel corporation earnings and some of the independents in the earlier year of depression and comparing them with those that have been reported for the first nine months of 1930.

The United States Steel Corporation, for instance, has just shown that in the January-September period of this year it earned nearly $8.50 on its common stock, or 11 per cent above the twelve months requirements for dividends on this stock. In 1921 the steel corporation, under trade conditions described as the same as now prevailing, only earned $2.24 on its common stock and ended that year with a deficit of over $14,000,000. Since the United States Steel Corporation and the Bethlehem Steel Corporation have radically changed their capital structure, with the proportion of bonded indebtedness to stock greatly reduced.

SAN FRANCISCO TO DECIDE ISSUE OF MAMMOTH BRIDGE

Voters Will Determine Fate of Proposed Golden Gate Structure

BY BEN G. KLINE
Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press
San Francisco—An early start at construction of what will rank as one of the most magnificent highway bridges in the world depends upon votes cast next Tuesday by residents of San Francisco and neighboring counties to the north.

It is the Golden Gate bridge, a link in a principal coast highway which for ten years has been dreamed about, argued about and jangled about. As Tuesday approaches talk and argument are mounting like a heavy surf at high tide, but "lawing" ceased when the legality of a bridge district was affirmed in high court and the war and navy departments gave their permission for construction.

Owing to the immensity of the undertaking and the fact that a proposed suspended main span of 4,200 feet is about 700 feet longer than ever attempted by bridge engineers, before, promoters of the structure are in a position similar to backers of the first steam locomotive. Objectors first said it wouldn't run, and when it did they declared the fool thing couldn't be stopped.

Or like the city engineer of an Arizona town who was building a municipal dam. The town was equally divided in opinion—one half said there never would be enough water to fill it, the other half declared that when it got full it would wash out.

Opponents of the Golden Gate bridge declare that it can't be built for $35,000,000, the amount of the proposed bond issue, which would be a lien on revenues, and that it is built for that amount revenue will not be sufficient to pay off the bonds. They don't stop there, however, but declare that its construction is a dangerous experiment, that it will mottle up San Francisco bay to the detriment of shipping, that it will increase taxes, that it will hamper national defense, and that it isn't necessary because ferries are doing a good job carrying motor cars and passengers across the bay entrance.

Supporters of the project refute all these charges categorically, and urge construction to promote the welfare of the city and give labor employment. The staff of eminent engineers who have worked up the plans, headed by Joseph E. Strauss, chief engineer of the bridge district, are assuring voters that the plans both for construction and financing are sound and practicable.

The opposition of shipping interests is answered by the statement

SHARE PRICES ON WALL STREET DROP TO LOWER LEVELS

Little Stock Is Offered for Sale—Bearish Movements Are Active

BY CLAUDE A. JAGER

Associated Press Financial Editor
New York, Oct. 30.—The stock market today was a languid stock market today, as Wall Street was inclined to restrained bearishness. Little stock was offered for sale, but after the meagre success on the bull side earlier in the week, traders were willing to turn bearish on almost any pretext. An abrupt decline in some of the beverage stocks was attributed by financial news writers to the belief that they would be adversely influenced should the campaign for the return of legalized beer prove successful.

Several reached new lows, as did United Aircraft, Gillette and Checker Cab. Radio sagged to its previous low at 20. Coca Cola was an outstanding soft spot, dropping 13 points and Canada Dry and White Rock were also off. The market was inclined to be bearish, but the lack of volume was not sufficient to cause a sharp decline. The market was generally quiet, with only a few scattered transactions. The volume was very light, and the market was generally quiet. The volume was very light, and the market was generally quiet.

There was little in the day's trading to influence the market, which seemed to be largely governed by widespread discouragement over its inability to rise for more than two successive days. The small volume of general liquidation, nevertheless, had convinced many traders that the market was thoroughly sold out, and its failure to make a sharp technical rebound has caused some confusion in the minds of traders who expect it to follow its well-known patterns. Bearishness was decidedly not aggressive. Some of the large operators recently active on the short side did not participate in the selling.

Such news as appeared, however, was more cheerful. Weakness of the smaller steel company shares was attributable to September quarter earnings statements by Newton and Otis, showing small deficits for the period. Reduction in the quarterly dividends of Packard Motor and International Silver, and omission of the Franklin preferred payment, were items in the news which had been generally expected, although they served to intensify the gloom in speculative quarters. The building statistics for the week ended Oct. 24 showed a decline in volume of all classes, although residential building held up fairly well. F. W. Dodge reported total contracts of $9,724,400 for the 37 states east of the Rockies, against $83,882,900 in the previous year. "Call" money was offered in the outside market as low as 1 percent, and the demand was negligible. The official rate, however, remained pegged at 2 percent, presumably on the theory that a lower figure would cause withdrawals from out of town.

UPWARD TREND NOTED ON N. Y. CURB MARKET

New York, Oct. 30.—High grade investment issues of railroad and utility corporations displayed considerable price improvement today under the impetus of the persistent inquiry from institutional sources. The upward trend among other classes of domestic bonds was less marked.

United States Governments had a rest after their sharp rally of yesterday and were quoted at or only slightly below the peak level of the year. The foreign list was firm. Following the rise of Latin Americans in recent sessions there has been a slackening in bidding but some issues that lagged behind the being adjusted to the new levels. Two bond issues appeared on the market today. The Province of Nova Scotia offered $4,400,000 4 1/2's, and Texas, Louisiana Power company seeks $1,500,000 on 5 1/2 per cent mortgage bonds. Among issues in prospect is a $4,000,000 note issue of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railroad. The railroad contemplates a $5,000,000 bond issue and is seeking $4,000,000 for four months pending sale of the bonds which is contingent upon improvement in the market. A $5,000,000 Lincoln park commission of Chicago 4 1/2 per cent bond issue was sold today to a syndicate and put on offer is expected shortly.

New York Transactions
A mild rally today on reports circulated in brokerage circles and subsequently denied by transit commission officials that an agreement had been reached with the Interborough Rapid Transit and Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit and Manhattan Elevated for their purchase to effect unification. Several bonds sold about a point higher. Strength of German international 5 1/2's was a failure of trading in foreign issues. The loan sold at 99 compared with a recent low of 72 1/2 and a high of 91 1/2. German is held around its previous closing price. Minas Geraes 5 1/2's, Bolivian 5's and Peru 5's were much improved.

BUYERS HOLD UPPER HAND ON HOG MART

37,000 Head Overrun Market—Demand for Beef Cattle Also Falls Off

Chicago, Oct. 30.—Buyers had the upper hand in the hog market and bid so slowly that prices were given a further setback, after the slump at the close of yesterday. A huge run of 37,000 head, compared with 3,000 headovers were more than the market could possibly absorb at prevailing prices. A few offers for 180 to 220 lb weights, that were the predominating weights in the run, were at 85.15-25, which appeared 10-15¢ below the low time of the day before. Packers received only 5,700 direct, but could not come into the market until a lower scale of prices was established, and shippers were slow to take hold.

Demand for fresh beef, especially for heavy carcasses, was so sharply off, that the liberal run of heavy cattle on sale today was hard to sell even at the present low levels, bids in the early trade were lower, as much as 25¢ in instances, and little was done, as holders refused to let go at reduced prices. There was no such difficulty with light yearlings, however, as both packers and shippers sought the few offered at fully steady prices. Receipts of 11,000 head of cattle nearly doubled the supply of last Thursday, and with so many from which to choose, buyers neglected plain steers and grassy she stock early.

CHICAGO LIVESTOCK
Chicago, Oct. 30.—(U. S. D. A.)—Hogs 27,000; including 6,000 direct; fairly active 10.25 lower; pig 9.50; bulk 9.40-9.50; 3.50-9.40; most 180-220 lbs 9.10-9.25; sows 10-15 lower; bulk 8.50-8.75; pigs scarce; mostly 8.50-8.75.

Light light—good and choice 140-160 lbs 9.00-9.25; light weight 200-250 lbs 9.10-9.25; medium weight 250-350 lbs 9.20-9.45; heavy weight 350-550 lbs 9.20-9.45; packers' sows medium and good—275-500 lbs 7.55-7.75; slaughter pigs—good and choice 100-130 lbs 8.40-8.60.

Cattle, 11,000; calves 2,000; few strictly choice yearlings steady; 27.15-30; other yearlings weak to 25 lower; practically no demand for heavy bullocks; indications unevenly lower; butcher stock also tending lower; bulls weak to 25 lower and bidding, 60 lower on vealers.

LAWLESSNESS IS CHARGE HURLED AT RADIO COMMISSION

Ex-Broadcast Engineer Assails Federal Body for Playing Politics

BY ROBERT MACK
Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press
Washington—(CPA)—"Administrative lawlessness" is charged against the federal radio commission by two of its former legal executives, while its ex-broadcast engineer assails it for "playing politics".

In formal briefs filed in the court of appeals of the district of Columbia, which sits just above the commission in radio jurisprudence, these assertions are made by Reuben M. Webster, Jr., and Paul M. Segal, former general counsel and assistant general counsel respectively, in one case, and by George O. Sutton, former broadcast engineer, now a practicing attorney in another.

Representing station WGBS, New York city, Webster and Segal state that the commission's action in this case "is a mere travesty of justice". It has been possible, the document charges, "for the commission to act so irresponsibly and capriciously that licensees and applicants live in an atmosphere of uncertainty as to the nature of the rights they enjoy, and apparently, it is possible for the commission to act with reference to a code of conduct which is less rigid than that provided for private agencies".

ISSUES STINGING ORDER
It was in the WGBS case that the court last may issued a stinging order which all but rebuked the commission for violating the court's mandate by granting a license to another station to operate on the channel to which the New York station had been assigned. Involving a dozen or so individual court actions, the WGBS case stands out as one of the most litigated issues in radio history.

Sutton's charges were made in a pleading filed with the court in connection with the commission's order to permit station WWVA to move from Wheeling to Charleston, W. Va., without first notifying other stations in Charleston. He obtained a stay order from the court preventing the commission from making effective the removal during the pendency of his appeal.

Webster and Segal ask the court to reverse the commission's action denying WGBS the right to operate full time on the 680 kilocycle channel, which it now is using under an enlarged stay order, but which the commission assigned to station WICC at Bridgeport, Conn.

Involved in this case also are stations WMCA, New York, and WNYC New York's municipal station, which operate on the 570 kilocycle channel on a time-sharing basis—just 30 kilocycles away from the channel on which WGBS now is operating. They claim ruinous interference. But WGBS contends that the engineering theory that a minimum separation of 50 kilocycles is essential between stations in the same geographic area to avoid "cross-talk" does not hold in New York's metropolitan area. "Freakish" physical conditions, such as the absorption of radio impulses by the great masses of steel structures in New York, retard interference of this nature, it is argued.

Weather Affects Health, Medical Society Claims

Madison — That the weather has much to do with a person's health and that winter colds, spring fevers and certain diseases of indisposition are directly associated with the weather were declarations of the Educational Committee of the State Medical Society in a Bulletin issued today. The statement declares that when the hours of sunlight shorten with the approach of winter, people should be out in the open as much as possible.

"There is more health in sunlight than there is in furnace heating," declares the Medical Society's Bulletin. "It is a well established fact that at the change of seasons with the invariable sudden fluctuations of temperature there are an unusually large number of colds and other respiratory disorders."

"It is also known that certain communicable diseases are likely to be more prevalent at one time of the year than another. The occurrence of measles, for example, usually reaches the highest number of cases some time in the spring; small-pox is called a cold weather disease; polio-myelitis, which is another name for infantile paralysis, is more common in the late summer and early fall."

"We can at present offer no good explanation for these seasonal increases but continued research will undoubtedly reveal the reason. Where the cause or method of transmission of a disease has been determined progress has usually been made in combating that malady. For example, yellow fever, formerly was an epidemic in warm weather, particularly in the south. Since the discovery that a certain mosquito was responsible for carrying the germ, health officials have been able to eradicate the disease. Typhoid fever, which used to be especially prevalent during the late summer and early fall, is now relatively uncommon at any time of the year, due largely to the purification of water supplies, the pasteurization of milk, and a careful oversight by the state of typhoid carriers. Infantile diarrhea during the summer months, so greatly feared by mothers of artificially fed infants, is now uncommon, because parents have been taught to feed babies only clean pasteurized milk from steril containers.

"There are still other reasons why a change of seasons affects health."

In winter the hours of daylight are comparatively short, the sun's rays are less direct and most of us fail to get the benefit of what sunlight there is. We shut ourselves up in our homes or offices, often in a Sahara-like dryness of air, with little or no ventilation and a superheated atmosphere. When we do go out the sun can have little or no effect upon us for we are bundled up so that but little of the skin is exposed. Sunlight does more than furnish light and heat. It contains chemical rays which do much for our health and destroy many disease germs, even those which cause tuberculosis. Then too, sunlight contains the ultra-violet ray, of which we read so much nowadays; it tans the skin, assists in childhood bone growth, and through chemical changes builds up body resistance, so we should make the most of the sun's rays."
